WHITE WAY SYSTEM READY

NEW STREET LIGHTS TO ILLUMINE XENIA ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Plan No Ceremony; Traffic And Police Signals To Be Used

Xenia's new "White Way" will blaze forth Saturday night, and the city take its place as one of the best illuminated of Ohio's smaller municipalities when electricity is turned on in fifty-two boulevard lights, in the business section.

The simple act of turning a switch by the foreman in the sub-station of the Dayton Power and Light Co. on S. King St., will be the only ceremony in connection with the affair.

At the same time Xenia will inaugurate its new traffic lighting system, signals flashing on at eight chief intersections.

The traffic lighting system, turned on for its first test Thursday afternoon, showed minor defects which had to be rectified. A force of electricians at once went to work remedying these troubles, working until 10 o'clock Thursday night. Another test was set for Friday afternoon. It was planned to have everything in readiness to flash on the signals as part of the city's new "White Way" Saturday night.

E. H. Heathman, local manager for the Dayton Power and Light Co., will personally supervise the inauguration of the boulevard system. At the substation, instructions have been given to watch the skies for sufficient darkness, and to turn on the current when that time arrives, bringing to Xenia people, the realization of a dream of years.

The boulevard system, extending two squares in four directions on Main and Detroit Sts. from their intersection, covers the section from Main to Galloway on the west, Detroit to Church on the north, Detroit to Third on the south and Main to Collier on the east.

The 400 candle power lamps will give a diffusion of light that will make the business section a "white way" in reality, when Saturday night throngs on downtown streets, see the radiance flash from more than half a hundred tall standards flanking the principal throughfares.

The tall standards, officials of the power company explain, give a greater diffusion of light, thus affording superior illumination for the business district. Old style illumination thus displaced has been in use, with slight changes, ever since Xenia adopted electricity as a means of lighting its streets.

Xenia people, have, however, for many years dreamed of a boulevard system. As far back as 1917 a movement was originated here looking forward toward the eventual adoption of boulevard lights.

Two months ago the Dayton Power and Light Co. set about to complete electrification of the streets in this modern manner.

The system to be placed in effect here is the same as is in use successfully and satisfactorily in Wilmington, officials of that company explain.

"COFFEE BANDITS" FLEE FROM BULLETS

CLEVELAND, July 31—This city's "coffee bandits" made their third appearance in as many days today and were the objects of four shots fired by the manager of a restaurant whom they held up and robbed of $45.

None of the shots, which were fired by Tom Pappas, manager of the Busy Bee restaurant and the victim of the robbery, was believed to have taken effect.

The pair entered the restaurant, ordered a cup of coffee each and then robbed Pappas when he served their order.

EXTEND SEARCH FOR THREE BANDITS

CANTON, O., July 31— An intensive hunt for three daring bank bandits who held up and robbed the Brewster Banking Company at Brewster, O., fifteen miles from here, yesterday and escaped with $40,000 in cash and bonds, was underway throughout Northern Ohio today.

Stark, Summit and Cuyahoga County authorities were searching for Frankie Mitchell, escaped Akron bank robber, in connection with the bold robbery. Descriptions of the one of the trio fit Mitchell, who escaped several months ago while being taken to Ohio State Penitentiary, Akron police said.

RECOGNIZE MRS. RUDOLPH SEIBER?

Mrs. Rudolph Seiber meets her husband and daughter, Maria, as they arrive at Pasadena, Cal. Perhaps we should enlighten you. It's none other than Marlene Dietrich, the German movie star, pictured in the midst of a little family reunion. Seiber is happy because he's with "the most beautiful cook in the world."

GRAF RETURNS AFTER EVENTFUL TRIP OVER ARCTIC WASTE LAND

Valuable Scientific Discoveries Made On Voyage

FRIE DRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 31.—With an Arctic voyage of discovery added to its list of splendid achievements, the Graf Zeppelin arrived back at its little nome town on the shore of the Lake of Constance at 4:55 a. m. today.

Most of the population of this town, famous as the headquarters of Zeppelins, were present to greet the Graf with loud "hochs" as she came down from the sky to repose in one of the great hangars.

The log of the Graf now includes, besides the dirigible's penetration of the Arctic Circle, a voyage round the world, a crossing of the equator, flights to both hemispheres and passages over five continents.

Further details of the voyage to the Arctic became known when the Graf disembarked its fifteen passengers, a dozen of whom were scientists and explorers.

The expedition discovered a new mountain range which members said they believed to be the highest in the Arctic. More than 5,000 feet high it stretches, they said, from Northeast Cape to the Taimyr Sea, a distance of 175 miles.

Existence of the Byrrange Mountains, between the Taimyr Sea and Dickson Island, was also definitely established. This range was found to be 3,000 feet high.

Professor Moltschanov, one of the Russian members of the expedition, revealed that four of his new weather ballons were released during the flight and signalled valuable data automatically from great heights.

The Zeppelin had been isolated from radio contact with the outside world for thirty hours by an atmospheric barrier which he termed a "heavy-side layer," the professor said.

Passengers described the fright of polar bears, schools of walrus and Arctic birds when they first saw the silvery dirigible.

A mystery of the flight, a loss of all his money by Professor Moltschanov, had not been solved when the Zeppelin was stowed away in its hangar. The Russian scientist woke up one morning while over Franz Josef Land to find his wallet missing from a pocket.

Judges Select Eleven From Correct Solutions

Names of the winners of the Fair Page guessing contest will be found in boxes in the different ads on the double page Fair ad in this issue.

The contest aroused great interest throughout the county and scores of answers were received. Every answer was given careful attention and all of the correct answers were placed in a large box which was shaken about so there could be no possible partiality in choosing winners.

Then the judges, J. Robert Bryson, secretary, of the fair board, and Clifford Brace, manager of the Uhlman store, drew the envelopes that contained the lists that will receive the gifts.

The large number of correct answers proved that literally hundreds of people in this locality are clever in disciphering puzzle contests. The Gazette, the fair board and the merchants are truly sorry that every one who correctly worked out the contest could not receive a prize, but they feel sure that every one who took part will remember that only eleven out of the great number who contested could receive the prizes and will be good enough sports to congratulate the winners.

Turn to the fair page and find out who will receive the free tickets to the fair and what gift each one will also receive from one of the advertising merchants.

GOODYEAR COMPANY SHORTENS ITS WEEK

AKRON, O., July 31.—Effective immediately, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company today announced a temporary shortening in the length of its working week because of a seasonal drop in demand.

Plant No. 2 will be operated on four six-hour shifts daily while employes in Plant No. 1 will work in three seven-hour shifts five days a week. The reduction in hours was made rather than a reduction in the number of employes, it was said.

TURKEY FETES LONG DISTANCE FLYERS; MAY CONTINUE TRIP

Mustapha Kemal To Honor Americans; Flyers Now Rest

ISTANBUL, TURKEY, July 31—Russell Boardman and John Polando, who established a new non-stop distance record by flying 5,014 miles from Brooklyn, N. Y. to this exotic meeting place of east and west, were being feted today by Turkish officials and members of the American colony here.

So for they have not confined the report that they would, having achieved their objective, continue their flight round the world. The two Massachusetts flyers said that they would remain in Istanbul about three days.

After their forty-nine hour vigil while their black and gold plane, the Cape Cod, soared over the Atlantic and western Europe to drop unexpectedly down at the San Stephano airdrome here yesterday, the two newest heroes of the air, slept long and soundly.

The aviators had intended to continue on to Angora, the new capital of Turkey, far inland on the Anatolian Plains founded by Mustapha Kemal. However, when they found that the dictator who has almost succeeded in making and occidental country out of Turkey was at present in Stamboul, the old Turkish section of Istanbul, they cancelled the trip.

During their stay here, Turkish officials said, they would be received by Kemal.

On Saturday, the two men will be guests of honor at a tea at the American summer embassy at Yenikeuy on the Black Sea. Among other guests will be Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French aviators, who, till yesterday held the record broken by the Cape Cod. They flew from Paris to Manchuria, a distance of 4,912 miles, in September, 1929.

Boardman and Polando left Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., at about six o'clock Tuesday, almost simultaneously with Pangborn and Herndon.

Boardman laconically told the story of the flight.

"Boy, oh boy!" he exclaimed, "did we carry the mail! It was like flying a midnight express. We didn't see anything but weather, and that was pretty fierce. Only now and then were we able to penetrate the fog and clouds to make out important landmarks.

"It was like going through a tunnel and waiting for that pin point of light at the other end."

CAPONE TRIAL SEPTEMBER 8

Permitted To Change Guilty Plea

CHICAGO, July 31—"Scarface Al" Capone, reputed gangland czar, today was permitted to withdraw his plea of guilty to federal charges of income tax violations and to enter a plea of not guilty.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson set September 8 as the date for the booze kings' trial on the income tax indictments. On that day Judge Wilkerson also will rule on Capone's motion to withdraw his plea of guilty to the indictment charging violation of the prohibition law.

These proceedings followed an unexpected summons issued by Judge Wilkerson asking Capone, his attorneys and the U. S. District Attorney to appear in court at 10 a. m. instead of 2 p. m., the time set yesterday by the court for hearing of the motion to change pleas of guilty to not guilty.

LINDBERGHS ARGUE OVER CANADA ROUTE

OTTAWA, July 31.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and officers of the Royal Canadian Air Forces today were at loggerheads over the route which the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh should take on their flight across northern Canada en route to Japan.

Colonel Lindbergh has refused to accept the suggestion of the Canadians that the northern route selected by the American flyer might be especially dangerous at this time of year. It was understood. He has insisted on taking the uncharted route to the north instead of the more southerly way along the Mackenize River, which the Canadian flyers have urged him to follow, the southern route was followed by Post and Gatty in their record dash around the world.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived here yesterday from North Haven, Me., where they said farewell to their son, Charles Jr.

OBSCURE GRAIN BROKER FORCES UP CORN PRICE

CHICAGO, July 31.—One man, a little known trader about whom are collecting legends of prowess in grain dealings, was credited by some today with the 15 cent increase in the price of July corn the past week.

Shorts struggled in the board of trade today to buy July corn at 72½ cents a bushel, corn that many sold at sixty cents or less. The sellers must fulfill their contracts today or settle with money.

Thomas M. Howell is reputed to have bought between six and ten million bushels in the past few weeks, single-handed. If this is true, Howell has made more than a million dollars himself and several millions for farmers possessing corn.

Two months ago, Howell was reported to have said "if corn is not worth more than fifty cents a bushel I am willing to lose some money buying it." It was this firm conviction that the price of the grain was too low that led Howell to issue the buying orders.

CIGARETTE SALES GOOD REGARDLESS OF BUSINESS DROP

Depression Is Felt Slightly; Credit Advertising

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Despite the protracted business depression cigarette production held up remarkably during the twelve months ending June 30 during which the output was 119,632,721,900, a drop of about 300,000,000 from the year before, it was announced today by the internal revenue bureau.

During the 1929 fiscal year, the last full twelve months of prosperity, the production was only slightly larger than in 1930. The supposition has been during the post-war period, when cigarette consumption increased rapidly until 1929, that women smokers were chiefly responsible. Information coming to the internal revenue bureau from the industry, showed there had been an actual decline in sales of cigarettes to women. Whether this was due to the depression or for other reasons was a matter of speculation.

The chief reason for the small decline of cigarette production during the depression has been the intensive national advertising campaigns in the newspapers, through radio broadcasting, magazines and bill boards, in the opinion of officials. Both the cigarette and tobacco manufacturers have conducted some of the most far reaching advertising drives in the history of the industries during the last eighteen months.

Cigar production and consumption has been declining for several years and for the twelve months ending June 30 amounted to 5,686,647,600, a reduction of about 642,000,000. Cigar sales always are harder hit by business depression than cigarettes. Of recent years cigar popularity has been declining, partially due, no doubt, that the smoking public has less leisure and prefers a "shorter" smoke. Restrictions placed on smoking in manufacturing plans, in other places of business and on street cars and subways likewise works in favor of the shorter smoke.

This country annually exports about 3,500,000,000 cigarettes. Although high duties are assessed on American cigarettes in most countries their quality gives them a substantial sale abroad. Cigar exports are substantial for the same reason. The government's annual revenue from cigarettes has exceeded $350,000,000 in recent years, with total tobacco taxes more than $400,000,000.

EX-SHERIFF FREE ON BOND

Caldwell Surrenders To Former Deputy

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 31.—After surrendering to a former deputy, former Scioto County Sheriff Maurice J. Caldwell was free on $5,000 bond today, awaiting trial on charges of inflating his expense accounts.

Caldwell was taken into custody by Al Bridewell, whom he discharged as a deputy but who later was appointed by county commissioners to the sheriff's position, and pleaded not guilty to nine secret indictments yesterday.

Six of the former sheriff's expense accounts revealed an excess of $599 over actual expenditures, County Prosecutor Cameron Meacham said. Three of the indictments charge the former sheriff with perjury.

Caldwell recently resigned at the request of county commissioners. He also is under $2,000 bond by the municipal court on a charge of issuing a false statement.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD BOY RESCUES TWO

TIFFIN, O., July 31.—Eight-year-old John Scheiber today was credited with the rescue of two women, one his mother, from drowning in Mohawk Lake.

The boy pulled his mother, Mrs. Paul Scheiber, and Miss Sadie Sliter, 16, from the water, when he saw his mother attempting to save the girl.

COUNTY LABOR DEMANDS JOBS ON PIKE WORK

Delegation Of Forty Promised Work On Wilmington Pike

A group of about forty Xenia men who made a demand Wednesday afternoon, for the employment of Greene County labor on the Wilmington Pike improvement, under contract by the state highway department, was promised by H. W. Walsh, resident state highway engineer, that he would put forth efforts in their behalf.

As a result, Earl Snyder, superintendent for the Republic Asphalt Co., Dayton, contractor for the state job of widening and resurfacing the road, is gradually replacing the unskilled laborers already in his employ, with men from Xenia and vicinity, Mr. Walsh said.

He promised Mr. Walsh, who asked him to give preference to unskilled laborers from this locality, that he would do so gradually, but could not disrupt his organization by taking on a complete outfit of inexperienced help.

The group demanding employment called first at the office of the county commissioners, in the belief that body had authority. They were referred to the state highway engineer by George H. Stokes, commissioners' clerk.

The grievance expressed to Engineer Walsh was that the contractor for the Wilmington Pike work had brought Dayton men here instead of hiring local labor.

Snyder told Walsh, the latter said, that the few Dayton men in his employ are skilled laborers and finishers, and that he could not replace them by hiring green men. He picked up most of the rest of his organization in Beavercreek Twp., where his company has the Dayton-Xenia Pike improvement, he said.

Mr. Walsh told him that he believed preference should be given to men living in this locality, instead of the western part of the county, wherever it was possible to do so in connection with the Wilmington Pike improvement, and the superintendent agreed to follow the suggestion.

Work on the improvement has been proceeding slowly because the contractor's supply of trucks needed in hauling stone from Melvin, east of Wilmington, is short, it is said.

COLUMBUS MAY LOSE NORTON AIR FIELD

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—Possibility that Columbus may lose Norton Field, which is said to bring approximately $100,000 annually in business to the city, loomed here today when it was learned that other cities are seeking the lease which expires here next June 1.

Cleveland, according to reports, has offered to provide a landing field and hangar to a reserve officers training base and several other cities are understood to have made attractive offers.

City council here has had a proposal under consideration for six weeks to lease the municipal hangar at Port Columbus to the government. Delay in acting upon the proposed lease, however, has opened the way for consideration by the air corps of other cities.

I'LL SAY ITS HOT

Out at Lincoln Park zoo in Chicago we find "Jiggs," the orang-outang, trying his best to keep cool. Someone gave him a fan, but maybe he thinks it takes too much energy to use it, for he seems to be still looking for an easy way of cooling off.

OHIO STILL AWAITS HEAT RELIEF; SOME AREAS ENJOY RAINS

Deaths Occur Along Eastern Seaboard; Relief Promised

By International News Service

Cooling winds and thundershowers today had broken the sweltering heat that has gripped many sections of the country for days.

Parts of the eastern seaboard, however, still suffered from the heat wave. The thermometer climbed to 97 yesterday in Baltimore where thousands sought relief by sleeping in the parks. The national capital looked forward to another scorching day after recording a 97 degree temperature yesterday.

In Boston seven persons died of the heat, but the torrid wave was broken by cooling winds, which promised to keep temperatures in New England and New York in the eighties. Six died of the heat and three were drowned in New York City yesterday where the mercury climbed to 89.

Througout the middle west temperatures were lower although readings above ninety and 100 were recorded in Iowa and Nebraska.

Rains and clouds also brought cooler weather to the Rocky Mountain Region where Pueblo, Colo., with 96 had the highest temperature.

Deaths due to the heat wave that struck the southwest stood at 33 today as temperatures dropped sharply following thunderstorms. Temperatures on the Pacific Coast were normal.

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.— Ohio put on its sunglasses today and with the impatient hope scanned the skies for signs of thunderstorms, long predicted but as yet unarrived, to end the oppressive heat wave that has sent temperatures soaring and caused numerous prostrations.

Rocketed to 102 degrees by street level tabulation, mercury climbed to an official maximum mark of 95 here yesterday. Temperatures from other sections of the state hovered irritatingly about the 100-degree mark, according to reports.

Weather bureau officials today renewed their predictions of relief from thunderstorms.

Two persons were overcome by the excessive heat here yesterday.

STATESMAN BETTER

LONDON, July 31.—The condition of David Lloyd George, former premier and Liberal leader was reported satisfactory by his physicians today. The statesman underwent a major operation Wednesday for haematuria, a kidney trouble.

ACHIEVE FAST TIME FROM BERLIN; HAVE CHANCE FOR RECORD

Speedy Flight Over Russia Would Give Pair A Lead

MOSCOW, July 31.—Like a great red eagle, the Bellanca round-the-world plane of Hugh Herndon Jr., and Clyde Pangborn whirled down to the October airdrome here today at 11:52 a. m. (4:52 a. m. Columbus time.)

The flyers came to a pause in the Bray, medieval capital of the Soviet after a night flight from Berlin at high speed, for the young men were out to cut down the time of Post and Gatty in their speedy globe-circling tour. When they left Berlin they had reduced the handicap put on them to fourteen hours.

If they can cut out the delays which held up Post and Gatty in Russia, Herndon and Pangborn still have a chance to reduce the time of the Winnie Mae, although she was a faster plane than the Miss Veedol.

The airmen were delayed on the Berlin-Moscow hop by fog and wind, but were still hopeful of beating the record of Post and Gatty. Their original plans called for stops at Irkutsk and Kharbarovsk, where the present record-holders also descended, but it was understood Herndon and Pangborn might go on beyond Irkutsk if their gasoline supply was sufficient.

The aviators dropped down at Templehof, Berlin, yesterday from Croydon airdrome, London. Earlier in the day they had started from Moyle Grove, the tiny Welsh terminus of the flight through blinding fog across the Atlantic from Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Before they left Pangborn and Herndon heard of the successful termination of the flight of Boardman and Polando, who had started out with them from Brooklyn Tuesday morning.

Owing to the simultaneous arrival of the Graf Zeppelin on its return from the Arctic at Templehof little attention was paid to the Miss Veedol when it settled down at Berlin. It was some time before airport officials realized that another transatlantic plane was on hand but when they did so they gave a cordial welcome to the flyers.

THREE WOMEN HOLD UP SHOP

CHICAGO, July 31.—Three stick-up-women, one old enough to be a grandmother, with white hair and a cultured accent, who robbed a dress shop of a $1,500 fur coat and a purse containing $27 were sought today.

One who handled the gun described as a "peroxide blonde about 45" told the clerk:

"Now listen, dearie, don't pull any fake faints, and keep your mouth shut. This is a stickup and we mean business. I'll fill you full of lead if you don't follow orders. Get into the basement and make it snappy."

RECEIVER ASKED FOR LOAN COMPANIES

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—An application asking that a receiver be appointed for the National Savings and Loan Co., and the Columbian Building and Loan Co., was filed in common pleas court here today.

The action, which was started by Mrs. Florence Dressel of Reynoldsburg in an effort to conserve the interests of depositers of the two institutions, grew out of the absorption of the National Savings and Loan by the Columbian.

Judge D. J. Reynolds will conduct a hearing on the petition today.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Treasury balance as of July 29, $287,257,142.32; expenditures, $9,283,599.64; customs receipts, $31,825,173.23.

WAPAKONETA BUSINESS MEN BUY WHEAT AT 75 CENTS TO AID PRICE

WAPAKONETA, O., July 31—Attempting to relieve congestion in the local wheat market, Wapakoneta merchants and business men have started paying Auglaize County farmers seventy-five cents a bushel for wheat which they will store and feed to the birds or the fish next winter, it was learned today.

Participants in the movement generally bought only two bushels. The price paid is approximately double the amount being paid at grain elevators in this section.

Although no organized drive was planned, those who introduced the idea admitted they were hopeful that the plan might prove a solution to the national problem of the wheat surplus.

Buyers were given automobile windshield stickers bearing the words, "I have bought wheat to feed the birds."

News of the plan spread quickly to nearby sections and the local chamber of commerce was flooded with requests for details.

Although it was said that business men probably would purchase not more than 600 bushels on the two-bushel-per-purchaser plan, many other residents of the city and county were expected to join in the movement.

DON'T SLEEP ON THE JOB

Yes! it sure is hot—just the right kind of weather to sprawl out beneath a big shade tree, with a sweating glass of lemonade, tinkling with cracked ice. Would you like to try some of this summer laziness for about a week. Well—why not take a vacation? Here's How!

Look around the house for some of those old articles that you have discarded. If they're at all good, place an ad in the Classified Section of the Gazette. If you can find enough to sell, the ad will give the results. You will probably make enough money from these old things to take a pleasant week-end trip. It's worth trying when the cost is so small.

A Changed World!

He humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him.
—Philippians 2:8,9.

UNWORLDLY men, who live more for the next life than for this, are looked on as fools, even as was Christ. His life apparently was a dismal failure. He died, deserted even by His own apostles, on the shameful cross. Yet He succeeded better than any other of the children of Adam. Dying, He robbed death of its victory, the grave of its sting. Leaving the world, He changed the whole face of the world. By His obedience He became the greatest of conquerors. We, His followers, must help Him carry His cross, daily. So shall we share His victory.

A Prayer for the Times

"O Thou who hast made all nations and hast appointed the bounds of their habitation, we pray for confidence in Thy purpose of love through these uncertain times. We are conscious of failure. Help us to know that except the Lord do build the house they labor in vain that build it. Bless the leaders of men all over the world that they may be delivered from obstinacy, duplicity, and self-adulation, and especially our own representatives, that they may serve their country without hypocrisy. Remember our President and his councillors in these trying times, that they may not surrender principle to expediency, but may be an example to all the people. Lord, lead us to the better day when Thy will shall be done on earth as it is in heaven. For Jesus sake. Amen"
—Presbyterian Banner.

"Cast Your Bread Upon the Waters". It pays to help others. It seems that two boys, Mr. Hoover and another one, working their way through the university, hit upon the scheme of engaging Paderewski to give a piano recital and of devoting the profits to their board and tuition. Paderewski's manager charged $2,000 and the receipts of the evening amounted to $1,600. The boys went to Paderewski and turned over to him the $1,600 with a promissory note for $400, explaining that they would pay him the balance as soon as they could earn it. The great pianist hearing the story gave them back the $1,600 telling them to pay all the expenses of the concert, deducting ten per cent form themselves, and returning the balance to him.

Years afterwards, when Paderewski was premier of Poland and his people were starving, tons of food began to come from the allies in the west. The prime minister made a trip to Paris to thank Mr. Hoover who was directing the distribution, but Mr. Hoover said "I knew the need was great. Besides you helped me once when I was a student at college and was in a hole."—Homiletic Review.

JOINTLY CELEBRATE WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor, Dayton, celebrated their seventh wedding anniversary and Mr. and Mrs. Maynard G. Taylor, Zimmerman, celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary at the home of the latter on the Dayton Pike Sunday.

A 6 o'clock dinner was erved and guests present besides the guests of honor were Mr. Arthur Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. Elizabeth Leonard, Mrs. Dorothy Vandergrit and sons, William and Thomas, all of Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Adair and two sons, N. King St., will go to LaSalle, Mich., Saturday to spend the week end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Fess at their summer home there.

Mrs. Charles Phillips, Home Ave., underwent a serious operation Thursday morning at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton. She is reported to be recovering satisfactorily.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Dunkel, N. Galloway St., returned home Thursday evening after a boat trip on the Ohio River.

Miss Mary Ervin, N. King St., national field secretary for the W. C. T. U., left Thursday evening for Montana, Washington and other western states where she will be engaged in her work several months.

Dr. J. A. McConnellee, returned missionary from India, will preach at the Second United Presbyterian Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, it is announced.

Miss Jane Louise Dillencourt, Hyde Park, Cincinnati, is visiting with relatives in this city. Her brother, Mr. Jack Dillencourt, who motored her with his sister, returned to Cincinnati Thursday.

Miss Dorothy Denham, Spring St., is spending this week as the guest of Miss Pauline Voorhees, in camp on the Voorhees farm, Fairground Road.

Eleanor Fawcett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Fawcett, Fayette St., underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils at the offices of a local physician Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cross and Mr. C. W. Whitmer, Hill St., will leave by motor Sunday morning for a western trip. They expect to visit at Glacier Park, Mont., and Portland, Ore., and will return home by the way of Canada. They plan to be gone four weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Brown, Hillsboro, are spending the week end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shoemaker, Bellbrook Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Plummer, Pittsburgh, Pa., arrived here Thursday evening to spend several days with Mrs. Plummer's sister, Mrs. Ella Nisonger, N. Galloway St.

Miss Mildred Hyman, N. King St. returned home Thursday after spending two days in Cincinnati with friends. She was a guest at a dinner party at the Zoo Dinner Club Wednesday evening.

Mrs. George Haninger and daughters ,Harriett and Katherine and Miss Minnie Haninger, S. Detroit St. will leave Saturday morning to spend several weeks in New York City and Niagara Falls.

Mrs. C. R. Stearns, Washington St., is spending this week in Rochester, N. Y., with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Stearns.

The Misses Louise Beatty, Edna Wedel and Ruth Frederick, Cincinnati, are guests for several days of Miss Annakate Lunsford, E. Market St.

Members of the choir of the Presbyterian Church and their families will enjoy a picnic near Clifton Friday evening.

Mrs. Claude Clarke and daughter, Floris, Columbus, were guests Wednesday of Mrs. George Baldner, N. King St.

Miss Dorothy Lunsford and Jane Lunsford, E. Market St., are spending several days in Cincinnati. The former is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Shelton and Jane is visiting Ruth Emily Stites.

Miss Josephone John, N. Galloway St., has as her guests this week, the Misses Margaret Pettit, Bellefontaine; Marie Deam, Springfield and Olive Hunt, Dayton.

Mrs. Andrew Gastiger, Trebien, who is a patient at McClellan Hospital suffering from serious burns received at her home several days ago, continues to slowly improve.

Frances Patton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Patton, Cedarville, underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils at the offices of a local physician Friday morning.

Elizabeth Ann, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Luce, Hill St., who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis at McClellan Hospital, Thursday evening, was in a favorable condition Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sollers, of this city, left by motor Wednesday night for Henrietta, Okla., where they were called by the illness of Mrs. Soller's brother, Mr. John Sutton. Mr. Sutton and family will return here with Mr. and Mrs. Sollers next week.

XENIA BAKES UNDER HIGH TEMPERATURE AS RELIEF DALLIES

"Slightly cooler" Friday night, was the only hope given by the weather bureau for relief from the heat wave sweeping the country.

There was little or no promise of relief through rains, although scattering clouds partially obscured the blistering sun Friday afternoon.

Themometer readings in Xenia for Friday were:

6 a. m.	78
7 a. m.	79
8 a. m.	81
9 a. m.	86
10 a. m.	89
11 a. m.	90
12 noon	92
2 p. m.	96

Xenia thermometors reached 98 degrees Thursday afternoon, the high record being made at 3:30.

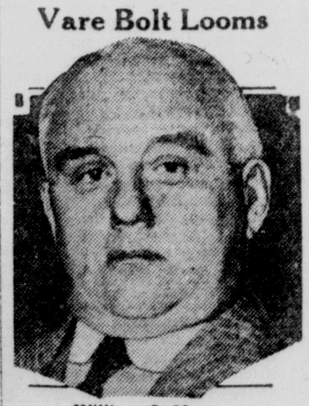

Poems that Live

ON THE LIFE OF MAN

LIKE to the falling of a star,
Or as the flights of eagles are,
Or like the fresh spring's gaudy hue,
Or silver drops of morning dew,
Or like a wind that chafes the flood,
Or bubbles which on water stood:
Even such is Man, whose borrowed light
Is straight called in and paid to night.
The wind blows out, the bubble dies,
The spring entombed in autumn lies;
The dew dries up, the star is shot,
The flight is past—and man forgot.

WHERE GANG GUNS MOWED DOWN CHILDREN

Gangdom's guns which mowed down five youngsters in New York's tenement district, instead of the unidentified man who was "on the spot," are responsible for one of New York's most revolting crimes in recent years. As the children played in front of ther homes machine guns pointing from a passing car, aimed at an unidentified man, cowering against two buildings, felled them. Top photos are of Baby Michael Bevilacuia, who received two wounds in his back and the riddled carriage in which he was sleeping. Below, left, Sam Devino, shot in the leg, with his mother; right, (1) alley where the man was hiding; (2) doorway where little Michael was sleeping; (3) lemonade stand which was ripped by bullets, and (4) the club near which the automobile of Joe Rao, racketeering associate of "Legs" Diamond, was seen, just before the shooting.

STATE RACCOON FARM MAY BE ESTABLISHED AT HATCHERY HERE

BUCKEYE LAKE, July 31—Establishment of several raccoon farms in Ohio was authorized here today by the state conservation council.

The Xenia Fish Hatchery and the Roosevelt Game Preserve, Scioto County, were tentatively selected as sites for the farms. A third will be established on some location not yet selected, the council decided

Members of the council said game protectors would be required to assist in the propagation of the raccoons and that the plan is a part of a program to give fishermen and hunters "more for their license money."

Harry E. Rice, president of the Greene County Fish and Game Association could not be reached Friday afternoon, but another officer said that the local group has been urging the establishment by the state of a raccoon farm at the hatchery, for two years.

Raccoons are now being raised at the hatchery by Ernest Harner, supervisor of the hatchery and game protector. The animals were turned over to the hatchery by members of the former Fox and Coon Hunters' Association, which merged with the Fish and Game Association.

DAYTON AND XENIA PIKE PARTLY OPEN

The Dayton and Xenia Pike is now open to traffic between Xenia and Zimmerman, Henry W. Walsh, resident engineer for the state highway department, said Friday.

The section between Zimmerman and Grange Hall will be opened next Friday, doing away, at least temporarially, with a detour which has been in effect between Dayton and Xenia for several weeks. Some one-way lanes are being used on the part of the pike under repair.

Work of re-building three and one third miles of the road by the Republic Asphalt Co., Dayton, is progressing slowly. The road is being constructed of water bound macadam.

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR PAYING TAXES

With the expiration Saturday of the additional twelve day extension of the June tax paying period, County Treasurer Helen Dodds said Friday that the treasurer's office will be kept open through the noon hour and until 3 p. m. Saturday for the accomodation of belated tax payers.

Collections were fair Thursday and Friday the treasurer said. She was unable to say whether or not the delinquent list would be unusually large.

Commissioners granted the second extension of the tax paying period, beyond the customary thirty days extension, because of the economic depression, financial stringency faced by so many, and in order to accomodate farmers unable to market their wheat.

BANDIT ESCAPES IN DUEL WITH POLICE

CLEVELAND, July 31— A gunman and robber suspect escaped in an east side park here today after a running gun battle with police which started when a radio cruiser squad became suspicious of unmatched licence plates on the fugitive's automobile.

No one was believed injured in the volley of shots which were exchanged between two policemen and the fleeing gunman.

The man escaped after abandoning his stolen automobile. The machine was wrecked when it crashed into a tree.

Examination showed it to be the same machine used by a robber a few minutes earlier in holding up a gasoline station near the scene of the gun battle, police said. Loot of $110 was obtained at the gas station.

DOC M'MILLEN IS WINNER AT TOLEDO

TOLEDO, O., July 13—Doc McMillen, veteran Ohio reinsman, today boasted two victories in last night's harness race program at Fort Miami.

After scoring with Senator McKlyo in the second and third heats of the 2:15 class trot, McMillen took all three heats of the 2:20 class trot with Just the Guy.

Although Sep Palin's lusty volo looked good to the crowd at the start, Nancy Nap won the feature, the 2:13 class pace, in straight heats.

Nancy Nap's win was a continuation of a series of victories for Henry Thomas of Springfield, Ill. Lusty Volo finished sixth in the first heat and second in the last two.

Zombro Hanover, favorite in the 2:20 class pace, won without difficulty.

How to Care for Your Eyes

By DRS. WILKIN & WILKIN, Optometric Eye Specialists

The Growing Infant

As the period of infancy is passing and the child begins to employ his eyes intelligently about him and notices surrounding objects, the time arrives when the character of the visual function should be observed.

Some children are able to see near objects with ease and distinctness, yet cannot recognize persons across the street; others who can see nicely at a distance may not be able to observe near objects as well while there will be a few who do not have keen vision at any distance.

Parents are too inclined to treat children as if all eyes were born with similar formation and endurance and this error is productive of many evils which show themselves when school instruction is commenced.

Note:—this is the seventh of a series of articles published in this paper, in the interests of better eye care.—Adv.

Little Orange Colored Can Brings Health to Thousands!

ALBERT COLE

There it is in the druggist's window, the little orange colored can.

A full month's supply of almost magic like powder that dissolves in your drinking water.

"Drink your way to health," is the slogan that offers you instant relief from indigestion, stomach trouble, and all kinds of intestinal ailments. Sometimes heartburn, rheumatism, high blood pressure, neuritis and other ailments make you feel hopeless.

Dr. Parker's Treatment, a natural compound of vegetable remedies, dissolved agreeably in your drinking water, goes right to the spot. Thousands report immediate results when other remedies have failed.

Cleanse your intestines, purify your system of poisons. Get rid of sour stomach, bloat, gas, and you will be a new person.

Make this amazing 7-day test. It's guaranteed. Take home a month's treatment, it costs only $1.25. But a tablespoonful of powder in the glass of water you drink. Then—if in 7 days—you do not experience wonderful, blessed relief—These druggists listed below will refund your money instantly.

Dr. Parker's Treatment calms the nerves, giving you rest at night—vigor and vitality in your work during the day. Enjoy your meals and eat anything you like. It's safe, simple, pleasant—pure as sunshine.

Listen to Mr. Albert Cole, 928 Cauden Avenue, Columbus, O., as he tells about his experience with Dr. Parker's Treatment: ...."No words can describe the misery that I suffered for over seven years from chronic indigestion and constipation and from sick headaches, billiousness and gas on the stomach. I tried one medicine after another. The best I could get was only temporary relief and not even that after a while. I felt sluggish and miserable all the time. A friend induced me to try DR. PARKER'S Treatment. Wonder of Wonders. Where all others failed DR. PARKER'S produced instant relief. Before I had taken half a can, my stomach and bowels started to act properly, the poisons were driven from my body and after taking only three cans my aches and pains vanished. I give all credit and praise to DR. PARKER'S Treatment for being able to enjoy life once more. No family should be without a can of it." Recommended by your druggist who spent years learning about the value of medicine. Ask him about DR. PARKER'S Treatment.

These authorized druggists endorse and guarantee Dr. Parker's Treatment. Get a can tonight and immediately start drinking your way to health.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Woe is me for my hurt! my wound is grievous: but I said, Truly this is a grief, and I must bear it.—Jeremiah, x, 19.

GANDHI'S POLICY

Something of Mahatma Gandhi's ability to dominate the minds of 250,000,000 fellow-countrymen is discovered in the marginal observations with which he decorated the publication of his rules of life, as well as in his "ten commandments" themselves.

Gandhi has frequently been compared to Lincoln. Certainly there is a Lincolnesque flavor to this remark of his: "It would be presumptuous of me to attempt to lay down rules for the conduct of others, but I don't mind telling you what my own rules have been."

Abraham Lincoln did not touch strong drink. What others touched was, according to his own firm admission, their business. What rules other men follow do not interest Gandhi. All that vitally concerns him is conducting his own life along these lines:

Truth.

Love.

Chastity.

Temperance in food, abstinence from alcohol and habit-forming drugs.

Abstinence from the possession of material things for their own sake.

Adherence to life's law that one's bread must be earned by the sweat of his brow.

Neighborliness.

A Jeffersonian belief in the equality of all mankind.

A recognition of the equal divinity of all of the great religious faiths of the world

Fearlessness.

Christians and Jews, who lean heavily on the ten commandments of Moses, will be forced to admit that Mahatma Gandhi has evolved from his meditations a scheme of life as noble as that to which they have been giving lip service all these centuries.

Gandhi may be metaphorically crucified on the cross of "paramountcy;" but the truths by which he lives will never perish from the earth. They are as eternal as human experience. They explain much of his secret influence over his fellow-men. The puissance of empire, external and objective, crashes when it strikes the stone-wall of personal character, as inspired by such a man and such a philosophy.

ADMINISTRATION RIGHT

The administration in Washington is opposing postponement of the impending arms parley, which some of the diplomats want to put off for a year, or two, because 1932 promises to be a time of great poltical activity in many parts of the world. Washington is right. If the interest in disarmament for the promotion of peace is not strong enough in the countries chiefly interested to command attention in spite of the excitement of domestic politics; if the question of arms reduction cannot be kept separate from party issues and made a question of non-partisan statesmanship, then the world is not yet ready to go into a disarmament parley that will be something more than an ineffective successor of a series of ineffective predecessors, and get real results. When civilization is actually in earnest about peace and disarmament, it will not be necessary to be fussy about selecting the time for arriving at the necessary formal agreement. Any time will do, and the sooner the better.

TO ENTER OXFORD

R. C. Sheriff, author of that never forgettable play, "Journey's End," is preparing to enter Oxford university as an under graduate. He is 34 years old and hopes to be able to get a Bachelor of Arts degree in two years. Mr. Sheriff says there are two reasons why he is entering college. He thinks "it will be fun" and he wants the B. A., which will be the reward of successful study, so that if he "fizzles out" as a writer he can go to teaching school.

We suspect that Mr. Sheriff is both more and less honest than a good many men that matriculate in institutions of higher learning; and that while he hopes to enjoy his college course, there is behind his light remark about "fizzling" a desire to round out for his own delight and satisfaction, an education which the circumstances of his recent life may lead him to consider defective. This indicates that he has kept his head in face of the sensational success and fame that have become his lot.

But you would not expect a man who could write "Journey's End" to do anything else.

CROSSING ACCIDENTS

Accidents at railroad crossings continue with some regularity, and will for many years. The old signs which people used to obey in the days before automobiles. "Stop, look, and listen," are not much heeded now. The man who drove a horse was apt to obey those notices. If he heard a train coming he would usually wait until it had passed.

But the automobile driver hates to stop at railroad crossings. He thinks it would seem over timid. There may be cars back of him which he thinks might run into him, or he thinks their drivers would regard him with contempt if he showed caution.

The number of automobile drivers who approach a railroad crossing without even glancing to see if a train is coming, is astonishing. People should listen with all their ears, and they should run as quietly as possible, so they could hear a whistle or a bell. We have had too many such accidents in Ohio.

Barring gold as legal tender and making silver the sole coin medium of business, as they have done in Mexico, is rather a reversal of the prevalent tendency, but it may work out very well in Mexico, where they have their special troubles.

We have known many dogs to bark as the Chicago judge put it, "in the line of duty," among them one who regularly tries to drown out a loud speaker.

MY NEW YORK

—BY JAMES ASWELL—

NEW YORK, July 29.—A night at the "Follies," second visit:

Heard in the lobby just before curtain time: "Don't be silly! They aren't real elephants. How could they be?" And, "I remember the show of 1922—"

There you have synthesized the "Follies" ingredients. Spectacle—five gigantic imitation elephants clump forward, bearing nudish girls on their tusks. And memory—Ziegfeld knows how to dramatize the tug of vanished happiness: he keeps his beauties hazy, shimmering, far-off. .....

Backstage, Bernie Sobel, immaculate "Follies" press-agent, twirling his cane; volatile, forever rushed, darting here and there, thumbing late editions for mention of the show. Now the big elevator crawling up—packed with girls who are clad in nearly nothing but who are sexless in the bright glare on greasepaint and mascara. They chatter about cues, about clothes, about other girls who should or shouldn't have done so and so. They are happy, eager, young. "Follies" girls! They know it.

The notice on the bulletin-board: "Sorry! Girls who disfigure themselves with sunburn will not be permitted to go on."

Gladys Glad—"most perfect show-girl of all time." In her dressing room (D-1), which she shares with Ethel Borden, neice of the late great Harriman of banking fame.....Gladys: "I've got a column, too, and more papers than you!"

Why did she pick that fantastically lush name? It misrepresents her. She is a girl of intelligence, even a certain strength in her too-perfect profile. And prouder, apparently, of her syndicated beauty column than of being one of the luminous showgirls of girlshow history. Almost anybody, as you may have concluded, can be a columnist!

Ethel Borden, whom Ziegfeld summoned after his wife (Billie Burke) had seen her in an amateur society show: "There's nothing in that society life. It's empty as a drum. I needed the money, too."

Up again—to the sixth-tier room of the mad Britons, musicians who smash and chew pieces out of their violins. "How's this for a story: the guy that bites a hunk out of his violin can't get his steaks tender enough. That's a good one!" Gene Gory, responsible for most of the violent antics of the orchestra, whose father was a clown in Europe; quiet-eyed.....

Jack Pearl, talking in a corridor with one of the electricians—and in English without a trace of accent, despite woolen-heavy dialect on the stage.

Now downstairs; a glimpse of the show and intermission. The delicatessen across the street completely deserted, while a drugstore on the same block with the theatre packs them ten deep around the soda counter. Crossing the street must be so risky it takes the fun out of an evening.

The little bespectacled man sitting in his $25,000 Isotta-Fraschini watching the stage door, later..... His tribe has decreased. Right behind the big car is a nice-looking young fellow in a new Chevrolet, waiting, too.

NEW TRIPLE ALLIANCE FORECAST IN LONDON BY ULTRA-TORY PAPER

WASHINGTON.—The London Daily Express, which speaks especially for ultra-Tory sentiment in England, predicts "a new triple alliance," consisting of Great Britain, the United States and Germany.

Whether significantly or not, the three countries are named in that order.

The Express does not, indeed, prophesy that the task of linking their destinies can be accomplished rapidly. It recognizes that the process must be gradual.

The thing it does point out is that the seven-power conference in London relieved Germany's economic troubles only very temporarily, if at all. A huge loan to the Fatherland, for a term of a generation or two, soon will be necessary, argues the Express, to save the Teutonic people from catastrophe which the whole world will feel. The British and Americans, says the Express, simply cannot afford such a disaster, but will have to put up the capital to prevent it.

And then, adds the London newspaper, the new triple alliance "will begin to take form."

Of course the average American will answer that any idea of Yankee participation in an amalgamation of Yankee and European interests is perfectly ridiculous.

Nevertheless, it is interesting to note that it is seriously forecast by an unquestionably highly influential English daily.

It is clear also that an arrangement of the sort outlined would be vastly desirable from the British standpoint—with Britain furnishing the experience, America furnishing the money and Germany making itself generally useful as a kind of junior partner.

The truth is that the London conference has revealed the British as mightily apprehensive of the growth of French power—just as they were so suspicious of Germany during the period of the latter's development for a decade and a half preceding the World war's outbreak.

In fact, historians' attention has been attracted by the persistency with which English statesmanship has maneuvered to the disadvantage of whatever other nation happened to be, for the nonce, Britain's chief rival.

It chanced that Germany looked formidable and France not particularly so, for a considerable length of time leading up to the assassination at Serajevo; whence it followed that England gazed increasingly askance upon the Teutons, but was on the most cordial terms with the Gallic republic. Now that the French look formidable in turn, the British attitude toward them is not so friendly, but is most helpful toward the beaten Germans, who are too weak to be a source of anxiety to anyone at present.

Under the circumstances, perhaps it is not surprising if France mistrusts England of wishing to strengthen Germany as an offset against French potentialities, which would account for a Gallic disinclination to encourage a program of German rehabilitation over-enthusiastically.

However, the English themselves are too hard up to lend to the Germans the aid which otherwise they might desire to extend to them; if so, it would suit them admirably to have America finance their policy.

Occasionally, to be sure, the suggestion is made that America is now England's chief rival, thus making Americans logically the objects of Britain's fiercest jealousy—as the Germans were before the war, and the Russians previously, and the Spaniards still longer ago, before Spanish greatness suffered reverses from which it never recovered.

Without contending that John Bull is not, possibly, somewhat jealous of Uncle Sam, allowance nevertheless must be made for the circumstance that they do not live at such perilously close quarters as Europe's neighbors; they are not political rivals, though decidedly so commercially.

It is not, then, hard to see why a "triple alliance" as outlined by the London Daily Express, would be a heaven-sent lineup, according to British calculations.

The Express evidently fancies the notion so much that it could not resist discussing it.

The Express, by the way, has an American-born editor, though long ago naturalized as a subject of King George. It is Lord Beaverbrook's paper but its active head is Ralph Blumenfeld, a native of Wisconsin, who originally went to London as a correspondent of the New York Herald in James Gordon Bennett's day.

WATER VAPOR RIDES INTO CYCLONE ON AIR

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

A large area of disturbed atmosphere developed into a moving formation, gathers to itself more than merely air from the surrounding geographical areas: The air carries watery vapor (moisture) resulting from evaporation over ocean surfaces, lakes, rivers, moist lands. This moisture is carried for many hundreds of miles. As the air from the south is the warmer air, and as evaporation goes on more rapidly the warmer the air, it naturally follows that the winds blowing into the cyclone from the south are more heavily moisture laden than the winds from any other direction. As south winds flow into the southeast quadrant of the cyclone, there, too, we may expect the cloudy weather and the rains.

ALL of US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I Was Frightened
Huddled in a Hole I Waited
Something Comforted Me
By MARSHALL MASLIN

We were living in a hole in the ground. It was a big, covered hole that stretched for hundreds of feet in every direction. And the guns thundered overhead and the earth shook when the shells fell and when our guns answered in fury.

The great hole had been a quarry before the war. Men had worked there, taking out rocks for roads; now we huddled there for safety. There we were, men and horses, all crowded together in a hole in the ground. There we ate and slept and boasted and wished the war was over.....And there was even a chapel near my bed, a chapel carved beautifully from the white stone by some soldier who had been a stonecutter before the war. Between me and that underground altar a curtain had been drawn.

The sun dropped below the smoky horizon. We went up for a few moments to see it leave us in angry splendor, and to dodge a few shells that came too close..... Then we went down to our cave again, to eat and to talk about the war and to get what rest we could. Soon there were only snores of men, and the whinny of horses and the stamp of their hoofs and a far rumbling overhead. So we fell asleep.

And woke, it seemed almost at once. The cave was gray with dawn. The clang of an alarm was sounding. Men were running about. And an invisible enemy was invading our den.....Gas! GAS! It had crept along the ground, it had found the openings, it was among us now—like a weasel among the rabbits. I fumbled and found and put on my flimsy gas mask, and hoped all would be well.

I was probably afraid. I prefer not to be certain of that. But I KNOW I was angry. It seemed so indecent, so humiliating, so outrageous for human beings to be hiding in a gray hole in the ground with grotesque masks about their faces, hoping they would not die, fearing they might, unable to fight Death away from them.

Then, as I waited furiously, I saw the curtain of the chapel pushed aside and I saw humble soldiers going to kneel and pray and gain a certain peace before they met their possible deaths. I saw them go in and come out again, and it seemed to me that, after they had prayed, their attitudes were more relaxed and that they faced the Thing more calmly. I could not see their faces but I KNEW that now they did not mind their danger so much.

It was not my church they knelt in, it was not my faith they had, and I do not think I prayed. At least, I do not remember going into any chapel and getting upon my knees reverently. But I have a feeling that those peasant-soldiers were doing it for me. And I felt the anger slip away from me and a kind of pity for us all—for the men around me, and for me, too, and even for the men across the line—seemed to take its place. And if I had been afraid I was no longer, and I did not feel so much like a defenseless rabbit cowering before the Weasel Death.

It was a curious thing to happen, in a hole in the ground, in time of war.

Apes Only Animals To Take Cold

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Domestic animals suffer most of the same chronic diseases as man—such as hardening of the arteries, stones in the kidney, etc. These are, however, fortunately not contagious. There are some contagious diseases that are absolutely peculiar to animals—distemper, for instance, which seems to be much like human influenza or measles, but which is never contracted by man. On the other hand certain human infections never afflict the domestic animals—the common cold being the most conspicuous. When experimenters tried to find an animal to study the common cold they discovered that none but our blood brothers, the apes, could be inoculated.

There are, however, many infections which both man and beast can have. Within the year prominence has been given in the press to parrot fever—psittacosis. Several epidemics were reported, most of them being traced to infection of a human who fondled a sick parrot or parakeet.

These diseases may occur in man and animals under several different circumstances. The disease may be common in animals and without difficulty transmitted to man and vice versa.

In septic sore throat the animal is hardly sick at all but human beings are very easily infected, become very sick and death may occur. The disease is carried in milk—and is caused by a streptococcus, a spherical-shaped germ of which there are many varieties. The variety which causes septic sore throat is streptococcus epidemicus.

The germ is normally a human infection and is transmitted to the udders of the cow by human contact, probably by the hands of a dairy workers. A curious and baffling feature of these infections is that the cow's udders, or milk bag, may not be evidently diseased or sore at all, but the germ may become implanted in the milk ducts and enter the milk in enormous quantities.

The disease appears in man usually in epidemics. It was first observed in the United States in 1911, in an epidemic studied by Winslow in Boston. There were 1,400 cases, of which 70 per cent got milk from the same dairy. Many other epidemics have since been studied, the last in 1928 in Lee, Massachusetts, where there were 1,000 cases with 40 deaths in a population of 4,050.

The symptoms in humans follow shortly after drinking the infected milk. There are severe headaches, backaches and grippy pains in the muscles and joints. The temperature goes to 103 and 105. The throat is sore and generally diffusely red, but sometimes there is a localization in the follicles of the tonsils. The disease lasts a week or ten days, with great weakness and prostration.

The only method of prevention is pasteurization of the milk, which appears to be always successful. Health boards are alert to the danger of the disease, and all of them insist on rigid precautions.

Boy Friend Notices The Pretty Girl

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"MY DEAR MISS LEE: I have gone with a boy steadily for one year. Whenever we are out together and we see an attractive girl, he looks at her two or three times.

"It may seem silly, but this antagonizes me greatly. I haven't said anything to him about it. Don't you think it is rather humiliating? M. H."

No, I don't see how it can be humiliating, M. H. It's just as natural for you to look two or three times at an unusually fine-looking man when with the boy friend. Don't tell me that you don't. It's human nature.

Do you expect the boy friend to be so in love with you that he is absolutely blind to anyone else? If so, you're in for a lot of trouble, my dear. Men start being attracted by pretty girls as soon as they notice anything—which is at about three months. And they keep it up until they die. They're made that way, and they can't help it any more than they can help breathing.

And what do you care? We're as bad about the men. Don't tell me we're not when you consider the fuss we make over screen and stage idols. Admire the girl he does, too, and don't be a jealous cat. I'm glad you didn't say anything to him about the matter.

MISS WORRIED SIXTEEN: I think it would be all right to accept Jack's invitation, and then I'd write the girl friend about it. Tell her as much as you can what you talked about and what he said about her, if anything complimentary, and tell her how you feel about the whole matter.

As they are not engaged, Jack would have a right to feel peeved if you refused his invitation and told him why, which would be only right under the circumstances. He would not want to have it thought that she had a mortgage on him and could keep other people away. That would only hurt her case with him.

If you still feel uncertain, better consult your own feelings if you were the one away and your boy friend asked a girl for a date in the same casual way. Would you care?

"DEAR MISS LEE: Since I am young and understand my generation, may I give them a suggestion worthy of thought and trial?

"This suggestion is to spend a great deal of time with mother and dad.

"I have moved a great deal, therefore I have met a great number of people. I am considered beautiful, have friends, my own car; in fact, I have everything a girl could ask for. So you see I'm not saying this just because it is my fate.

"I have a wonderful mother and father. Mother always understood me. Every time dad has said something about a friend—not boys only, but girls as well—he is right.

"It is for this reason I spend five nights a week with them. We go places and have a good time. They are real pals, that can share my troubles and help me.

"So I advise each young person to know mother and dad during the remainder of the summer. Your friend, LOUISE."

An excellent idea, Louise. No summer will be wasted, even if one cannot take a long vacation and meet new people, if you get to know your parents better and grow closer to them.

Today's Recipes

Dumplings.—One-third cup milk and water (half and half), one-half cup sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted butter. Add the milk to the flour and salt, stir in the butter and beat until well mixed. Drop the batter quickly into the gently boiling soup by one-half teaspoonfuls. When the dumplings come to the top, serve the soup at once.

Liver Dumplings.—One pound liver, two tablespoons chopped parsley, two tablespoons chopped onion, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two teaspoons lard or bacon drippings, one cup farina, one can beef consomme. Remove the membrane from the liver and put the liver through a meat grinder twice. Add the finely chopped parsley and onion to the liver. Then add the salt, pepper, fat and farina. Shape into small balls about one and one-half inches in diameter and drop into the boiling consomme, to which one can of water has previously been added. Simmer slowly for five minutes and serve piping hot. The broth should be saved and used as soup stock.

Pea Soup Made With Pods.—Two quarts fresh green pea pods (two pounds peas should suffice), two quarts water, four large carrots, cut in long slices; two large onions, sliced; two teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon white pepper, two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour. Wash the pods thoroughly. Add the water, carrots, onions, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer about one hour. Remove the carrots, drain the stock and discard the pods and onions. Melt the butter and cook until golden brown. Add the flour, mix well and to this add a small quantity of the liquid.

Wear Overnight Mask

By GLADYS GLAD

Back in the Moyen age, women used to go to bed at night with strips of raw beefsteak or veal arranged on their faces, in order to beautiful themselves. These raw meat applications were known as "Husband Masks," and were permitted to remain on the face throughout the entire night.

The modern woman, however, does not, as a rule, cover her face with meats or thick pastes when she retires at night. In the first place, she dislikes to have her husband witness the attempts she makes to keep herself attractive. And in the second place, she realizes that the skin must be given a chance to breathe freely. Therefore, she goes to bed with her skin clean and fresh. And she takes her mask treatments in the afternoon or early evening.

However, some women have not the time to give themselves mask treatments during the daytime. And because the skin derives such great benefits from face masks, I would suggest for those women a weekly overnight mask treatment.

An excellent overnight face mask can be made of oatmeal, egg white and honey. Mix an ounce of honey with three ounces of fine oatmeal, and fold in the beaten white of one egg. This will form a smooth, thick paste. Before applying the mask, cleanse your skin thoroughly, employing your usual cleansing process, and smooth a bit of nutrient or cold cream around your eyes and mouth. Then spread the paste over your entire face, with the exception of your eyelids.

You will need something to hold the paste properly on your face during the night. A square of soft linen or thin muslin will serve this purpose admirably. Cut holes in the cloth for your eyes, nose and mouth, and fasten it over your face after the paste has been applied. If you prefer you may spread the paste directly onto the muslin or linen, and then fasten the entire mask into position.

The following morning the mask should be removed, and a bit of nutrient or cold cream should be applied to the face to counteract any drying effects of the mask, and to keep the skin soft and smooth.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Mouth Wash

G. M.: An effective mouth wash can be made by dissolving one-fourth of a teaspoon of borax, one-fourth of a teaspoon of salt and one-fourth of a teaspoon of peroxide in a glass of warm water.

Reducing

Margaret Gray: You can indeed safely rid yourself of those 15 excess pounds by following the reducing course contained in my booklet on "The New Figure." I regret to say that the routine is too long to print here.

Standard Weight

Mary K.: Your weight is about correct for your height and age. Facial exercises such as the movements involved in whistling and blowing bubbles will help to round out the facial contours.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

All Stars Overwhelm St. Brigid Team 24-6

PINCH HITTING for Phil Frame by R. A. H.

While the food supply at the combined softball jamboree and lawn fete at Paintersville ran out early Wednesday, here was a considerable amount on hand orginally considering that all of it was donated for the purpose.

The immense crowd was beyond expectations of those in charge of arrangements with the result while there was enough food for 1,000 sandwiches, these were quickly exhausted by the famished fans, who then had to go hungry until they got back to Xenia.

Jim McCurran who played shortfield for the Downtown Country Club with the picture of a chicken sandwich floating before his eyes like a mirage was one of those sending up a loud wail when he learned the food was all gone.

Although it was only the second non-league game the Downtown Country Club ever participated in, Sam Huston, Downtowner first baseman, is in favor of further engagaments with non-league opponents. Sam seemed to have a lot of fun as one of "Atlas" Smith's guests for the evening. He must have gotten one of those sandwiches at least.

The retirement from baseball of one of its finest and most successful characters Cornelius McGillicuddy, otherwise Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, looms as a possibility in case his team wins the world's championship this fall.

It now appears certain that the American League champs will repeat in their circuit and that the St. Louis Cardinals will again capture the National gonfalon and again be their opponents in the series. No manager has ever won three straight world championships and it appears likely that this would be a graceful spot for Mack to retire if he accomplishes the feat in October. Mack is up in years and is reported ready to step out if it can be done gracefully.

* * * *

The Athletics' boss is undoubtedly one of the greatest baseball organizers in the business, since he has practically always built his teams from raw material.

After his famous club of 1914 was beaten four straight games by the Boston Beans in 1914 in the series, he broke up the club and began to rebuild anew. There were many lean years until he put the team together that captured the flag in 1929. As an example of his rare artistry with ball players take the case of Waite Hoyt, whose pitching days were supposed to be over. Mack has made a winning pitcher of him and has him taking his turn regularly in the box. Bob "Lefty" Groves has lost but two games this season and seems destined to pitch more than thirty winners before the schedule folds up.

Baseball, however, is one field of endeavor in which a fine organization does not always mean financial success. Mack's team is so good this year that the rest of the circuit can't furnish him with enough opposition to make it interesting for the fans. As a result they are turning their attention to the lowly Phillies, who Burt Shotton is having a hard time keeping out of last place in the National League.

JAMESTOWN TO PLAY BELMONT ON SUNDAY

The Jamestown Merchants will play the Belmont Merchants Sunday at Jamestown and will open a three-game series with the Xenia Merchants the following Sunday, August 9, the first game to be played in Xenia.

Jamestown lost its second straight game last Sunday to the South Vienna Merchants by the score of 5 to 1, although outhitting the winners by a good margin. Evans held South Vienna to five hits and fanned six, but was not given the best of support. Tracy, of South Vienna, permitted eight hits and fanned five of the enemy.

VICIOUS ATTACK BY LEAGUE LEADERS IS RESULT PRODUCER

Winners Smack Out 28 Hits; Losers Weak In Field

Going to bat sixty-three times during an ordinary nine-inning game, the All Stars, leaders of the American League race, pounded out twenty-eight hits, including three home runs, three triples and five doubles, took advantage of ten errors and walked three times to score 24 runs against the St. Brigid school team at Cox Field Thursday evening. The losers accumulated six runs.

Hornick was certainly no puzzle to the heavy artillery of the loop leaders, who increased their individual batting average while slaughtering the pellet all over that section of the county. The winners began their assault viciously in the first stanza, producing five runs on five hits, gathered four more in the fourth, six in the fifth, four in the sixth and three in the seventh.

The winners made a field day of the occasion, hammering the ball unmercifully, chasing the St. Brigid fielders to all corners of the township and running bases until they were exhausted. Moll led this attack with five hits, including a homer, triple and three singles while Putnam got three safeties, including two home runs and a single. Blackburn collected a triple and two doubles in three trips and Weaver got four singles in seven times at bat.

Anderson pitched for the winners and permitted but six hits. Horrick, who hurled for the loosers, was stronger at bat than he was in the box, getting a double and two ingles in four swings. Grahams will meet the Wood Barbers in a National League game at the yard Friday evening.

ROBINS REDEEM SELVES AFTER TWO MONTHS' DELAY

On their way at last after two months' dalliance in the second division, the Brooklyn Robins have once more become the pennant threat they were expected to be before the season began. Leaders in the Flatbush Flock's thrilling pennant drive include Babe Herman, top left; Dazzy Vance, top right; Del Bissonette, lower left, and Al Lopez, lower right. Center is Manager Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn's vetern boss, who has won two pennants for Flatbush.

IDLE HOUR TEAM DROPS CLOSE GAME TO SPRINGFIELD TEAM

Stopping the highly-touted Idle Hour Club's batting attack to a standstill, the St. Paul Lutheran Church team of Springfield managed to make its few hits count to defeat the Xenia team 3 to 0 at Mulberry Park Thursday vening.

The usually vicious batting assault of the colored boys was held to a single by Shoecraft by the masterly pitching of Meder, the visiting hurler. In the meantime Bradshaw, of the Idle Hour Club, was also having a good day, permitting the visitors but four safeties.

One of these was a home run by Kinsler in the first inning and Swan, who had been given a life on an error, was scored ahead of him. The visitors wasted a hit in the second when a snappy double play stopped the rally and they scored their final run in the last frame of the seven-inning game.

Only twenty-two batters faced Meder during the abbreviated contest and he probably established a local strike-out record by whiffing thirteen of the Xenia boys during the short game, including all three of the first batters to face him in the first inning. He wound up strong by fanning two in the last stanza.

The Idle Hour Club will play the Moore and Swindler team at Wilmington Friday night and will go to Washington C. H. Sunday to meet the Dahl-Campbell Co. team.

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

WHILE THE second place clubs in both major leagues are rapidly coming to the conclusion that this isn't a baseball race but a ride on the merry-go-round and that they'll never catch up with the horse ahead, it might be well to peer at the doings in other baseball wheels which, if less important are far more interesting to the inhabitants of their constituent cities.

A quick survey of minor league affairs shows that with few exceptions the smaller circuits are enjoying hotly contested arguments for which they must be the envy of their haughtier big league brethren.

Close, red-hot races in the American and National leagues would have meant huge additional sums in the coffers of several clubs in each of the two big wheels. However, if runaway races hurt big leagues they are fatal to the smaller groups. Tight pennant fights this year, then, have proven blessings to many a minor league.

TWO OF the three top-notch minors, the class AA fellows, are vigorous slam bang battles of a potency to delight the heart of any scrap-loving fan.

At this writing Oakland, Seattle and San Francisco were all square in the struggle for first place in the second half race of the Pacific Coast league. Los Angeles trod the heels of the three first-place teams, only a game to the rear.

Two and a half tilts was the margin which kept Montreal looking down from the first rung on Newark in the International league. And Rochester was but three games away.

St. Paul seems to have temporarily mastered the American association situation, having fashioned a six-game lead over Minneapolis and Louisville. But the rest of the clubs are closer together than Monday and Tuesday.

TURNING to class A leagues we find more close scraps.

The Texas and Western circuits show but one and one-half games between the No. 1 and No. 2 outfits in each circuit. St Joseph was a step ahead of Des Moines in the Western and Houston had the same edge on Beaumont in the Texas. Hartford trailed Bridgeport in the Eastern league by two scant games.

In other leagues Quincy led Peoria by two games in the Three-i, Wilkes-Barre topped York by one and one-half contests in the New York-Pennsylvania, Grand Island held a one and one-half game lead on Lincoln in the Nebraska State, Youngstown and Fairmount were tied in the Mid-Atlantic, Joplin was two up on Bartlesville in the Western association, and El Paso was one and one-half ahead of Phoenix in the Arizona-Texas loop.

Other races weren't so close.

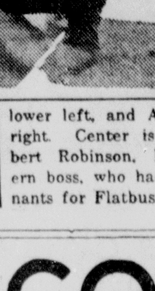

GOLF for GIRLS

by GLENNA COLLETT

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth of a series of instructive golf articles written by Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, national champion and America's best known woman golfer, for Central Press Association and the Gazette.

Number 8

MORE QUESTIONS nave been asked me concerning my pivot than any other part of my stroke.

Glenna Collett

So here's how—and why.

I raise my left heel decidedly on the back swing. I was taught not to pivot from the waist—the ordinary arch that the clubhead follows on the backswing being sufficient to carry the body along with it in a natural turn. That is, of course, if I took my left heel off the ground.

It isn't a sway. Most golfers have been misled by this pivot being termed a "sway." It really is just a mere shifting of weight.

I bring my weight back as far on the right foot as possible in order to acquire a wider arch with which to hit the ball. My left heel then has to snap back onto the ground.

The left heel has to come down quickly—don't forget—to put the player in a firm position so as to make full use of all her hitting power.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31—Pouncing upon a scattering of speculative favorites which were believed to be out of line on a price-earning ratio the bear faction imparted renewed unsettlement into the main body of stocks today, with the general level of prices forced to new low ground on the current reactionary phase.

The decline was well maneuvered, for selling was heaviest in those issues which had been in the for front of the final splunge of the memorable 1929 bull campaign.

Off to Blaze Trail to Orient

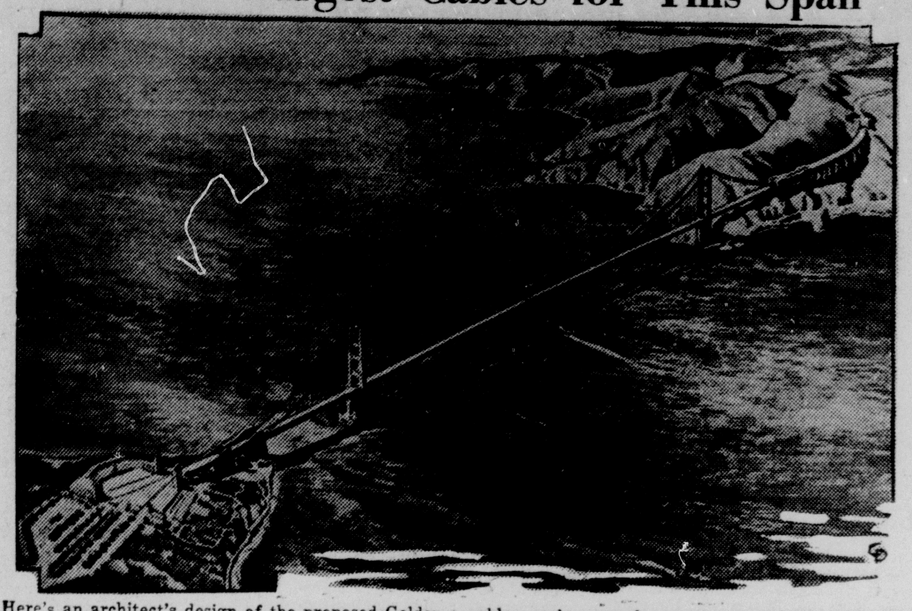

With the same nonchalance which characterized his take-off for Paris four years ago, Colonel Charles E. Lindbergh, accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, took off from New York for Washington on the first leg of their projected trail-blazing flight to the Orient. The famous couple of the air is shown in insert as they amicably smile for the photographer just before skimming off in their powerful pontoon-equipped Lockheed Sirius low-wing monoplane. The aerial shot of the Lindberghs headed for Washington, with the imposing New York skyline in the background, is one of the best ever taken.

World's Largest Cables for This Span

Here's an architect's design of the proposed Golden Gate Bridge, the largest in the world, to be built over San Francisco Bay Narrows. More than 174,000 miles of wire, enough to circle the world seven times at the Equator, will be used in the cables and suspender ropes that will swing the bridge into place. There will be two main cables, each a mile and a half long and 36¼ inches in diameter. Each will weigh 10,937 tons, exceeding by several tons the largest cable previously woven.

England's Fairest Invade U. S. Courts

Now that leading United States ladies have bowed at the Court of St. James, we find these English women reciprocating, but in a different manner. They are the members of the Wightman Cup team who will represent their country in the international matches to be held Aug. 7-8. This picture, taken at Forest Hills, L. I., just before their first practice on American soil, shows, left to right: Eileen Whittingstall, Betty Nuthall, Mrs. W. P. Shepherd-Barron, Phyllis Mudford and Dorothy Round.

HEADS CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS

Supreme Regent Miss Mary C. Duffy, Newark, N. J., was unanimously re-elected head of the 200,000 Catholic Daughters of America at the recent convention of the order held in Atlantic City, N. J. Mrs. Anna C. Baxter, Dubuque, Iowa, is a member of the national board and chairman of the extension of the organization committee. The Most Rev. Bishop William J. Hafey, of Raleigh, N. C., is national chaplain. The organization has 2,000 courts throughout America, Cuba, Porto Rico and Panama.

Guaranteed to Furnish Thrills

In preparation for the busy racing season, the mosquitoes of the sea, better known as "skimmers," turn out for practice races on Alamitos Bay, off Long Beach, Calif. The skimmers are the smallest type of recognized racing yacht and their contests verge on the spectacular as sailed by young skippers, who are just as frequently girls as boys. This snappy action proves that all's not serenely smooth sailing when out in a skimmer. But it looks mightily exciting just the same.

The Twain Meet "Liberty" to Brave Sea Again

Contradicting Kipling, the East and the West have met, but there's trouble ahead. Attractive Katsuko Suzuki (above), Japanese co-ed at the University of California, is claimed by two men, one Japanese and one American. The Japanese claims to be her guardian and says he secured a divorce to wed Katsuko, according to ancient Japanese custom. The American, Joseph W. Angell, son of a minister of Gold Beach, Oregon, claims the love of the Japanese girl and also wishes to marry her. Katsuko insists she will make up her own mind.

"Liberty," the monoplane which already has negotiated the treacherous Atlantic, is going to get an opportunity to see if it can repeat its oceanic feat. Mrs. Geraldine Grey Loffredo (left), Buffalo's (N. Y.) leading woman flier and parachute jumper, has purchased the "Liberty" in which Otto Hillig (right), Liberty, N. Y., photographer, flew to Copenhagen with Hoiriis. Mrs. Loffredo proposes to fly from New York to Rome.

West Point Rookies At Gunnery Class

Here's a fine bunch of raw material going through the process that will make them army commanders. They are members of the new class at the United States Academy at West Point, N. Y., learning to operate machine guns. The boys have had but two weeks of mass command and calisthenic drill instruction but have proven apt pupils in that short time. Notice the earnest expression on the face of the cadet on the extreme left of picture. Evidently he takes his gun seriously.

A Meeting of Moment

Ostensibly Ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith is wishing Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York the best of luck on his fishing trip in Peconic Bay as the two chieftains of the Democratic party meet at Westhampton, L. I. Political dopesters have been debating for some time what will happen when the Democratic National Convention rolls around to nominate a candidate for the Presidency. Governor Roosevelt, in the past, has been a staunch supporter of Al Smith. The question is will Smith back Roosevelt now that he has aspirations for high office? It's a meeting of moment.

Where Aged Inmates Died in Fire

A view of one of the burned dormitories in the Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor, Pittsburgh, following the fire which swept the building. Twenty-six aged men and women inmates lost their lives and many others are in a serious condition in various Pittsburgh hospitals. Heroic nuns and firemen saved the lives of a hundred more by leading them to safety through smoke-filled hallways.

Greta to Wed

The entrancing allure which Greta Garbo (above), Swedish film star, has exercised over thousands of movie admirers, has won her a husband, a Swedish merchant named Andersson, according to an article published in the Svenske Dagbladet, Copenhagen, Denmark. The widely known screen star is said to be on her way to Europe to hear the wedding bells ring out.

Havana and Back in 17 Hours

Captain Frank Hawks, premier speed pilot of the world, is shown being greeted by prominent New York officials and his wife after his record-breaking flight to Havana and return in total elapsed time of a little more than 17 hours. Such time gave Hawks his breakfast in New York, lunch in Havana and dinner in New York. From New York to Havana, Hawks set a new mark of eight hours, eight minutes in his famous Texaco 13 monoplane, beating the recently set record of James Hall by 27 minutes. Returning he beat his own old record in flying the 1,400 miles in seven hours and 31 minutes. Left to right are: George Mann, of the New York Mayor's Reception Committee; Mrs. Hawks, Capt. Hawks and William Deegan, city official.

insists upon VALDURA ASPHALT PAINT being used on all work he is interested in.

He does this because he is responsible for the success of the building enterprise, and must have the best materials. He makes sure that the paint he uses gives real protection.

When you need a paint that must be absolutely waterproof and weatherproof—a paint that will resist acid and alkali—a paint that will give you better and longer service than any other paint, get VALDURA. It will give you real protection and honest service.

VALDURA is put up in convenient sized steel containers. You can get it in Black, Brown, Red, or Green. It is moderately priced.

FAMILY QUARREL SETTLED BY POLICE

Half a dozen telephone calls in less than as many minutes, took police in a hurry to the center of a neighborhood fight on Walnut St., Thursday evening.

They arrested Glenn Johnson, his wife, Hazel, who is suing him for divorce; Edward Thoroman and his son Everett, neighbors.

Police learned that the fracas started after the Johnsons met at their former home, 59 Walnut St., to arrange affairs incident to their separation. All were released pending an appearance before Judge E. D. Smith Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Bert Driscoll, 50 Stelton Road was placed under $500 bond when he pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegal possession of liquor before Judge Smith Friday.

Police confiscated six gallons of liquor in a raid at Driscoll's home Thursday afternoon. Both Driscoll and his wife disclaimed ownership of the liquor and said it was the property of Calvin Brown, Bellbrook Ave. Brown, arrested, denied the charge. He was also held under bond for a joint hearing August 4.

UNION SERVICES DURING AUGUST

Union Sunday evening church services will be continued during the month of August. The schedule is being announced by the Rev. W. N. Shank, president of the Xenia Ministerial Association.

The schedule is: August 2, Second U. P. Church with the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold preaching; Aug. 9, First Lutheran Church with the Rev. S. H. Brill, preaching; August 16, First U. P. Church with the Rev. J. R. Lunsford preaching; August 23, Friends church with the Rev. J. P. Lytle preaching, and August 30 at the United Brethren Church with the Rev. E. A. Rager preaching.

Hoover's New Aide

Some Stars From A. A. U. Constellation

The women, bless 'em, had their day at Pershing Field, New Jersey, when the A. A. U. held its Women's Track and Field Championships Meet. Many spiked-shoe beauties from the Middle West and South showed that they are not content to let their men uphold the traditional athletic prowess of the great outdoors. Above are four of the dashing participants of the meet who gave a good account of themselves. Mary Carter came all the way from Dallas, Texas, to do her stuff, and, boy, how she did it! Anne O'Brien, of Los Angeles, is a former Olympic star sprinter; look at the action in the picture. Evelyne Hall, of Chicago, shows how she clears obstacles; hurdles are her meat, and Nellie Todd, also of Chicago, is a broad jumper that takes a lot to beat her. Look out, men, for your records!

COUNTY 4-H CLUB NEWS

The "Careful Canners" 4-H Club held its last meeting of the year at the home of the leader, Mrs. Bootes, Thursday afternoon. Demonstrations were given and plans were made for a food market at Gegner's meat market, Saturday. Proceeds from the market will be used by the girls to pay their camp expenses. All members of the club are planning to attend the 4-H Camp.

EAST END NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Collins, E. Second St., had as their guests for dinner Thursday evening Mrs. Pearl Thomas, Washington C. H., and Mrs. Virgil Allen, this city.

Mrs. Ora Hawkins, 20 Evans Ave., and her brother Charles Smith, Jacksonville, Fla., who is visiting her, will go to Columbus Monday to visit relatives there and also in the southern part of the state.

Mr. Arthur J. Baxter and son, Lestley, of Berea, Ky., visited his cousin, Mrs. J. J. Turner and family of Wilberforce this week. He also visited relatives in Springfield and Columbus, O. Mr. Baxter is one of Berea's enterprising young business men.

GIVEN JUDGMENT

Mrs. Cleo Wogaman was awarded a verdict for $330.50 against C. E. Bradstreet by a municipal court jury Thursday afternoon, in her suit to recover for household goods alleged to have been stolen or damaged while in charge of the defendant for storage. Five of the six jurors signed the verdict.

Love Leads Heroine To Broadway In New Serial

By Central Press

Longing for freedom from the petty, narrow-minded gossip of the back fence brigade in her home town leads Natalie Dudley, with her sister Nita, to follow the glit-

ETHELDA BEDFORD

tering mirage of adventure along the highway that leads to Broadway. On that gay white way Natalie falls in love—with a man who unconsciously erects a hopeless barrier to the culmination of their romance.

What happens to Natalie's love is told in Ethelda Bedford's "Broadway Bride," the story of a girl who took love seriously, which begins in The Gazette Tuesday, August 4. Miss Bedford, also the author of "Dear Diary," a continued feature, is a serial story writer of vast experience. Her stories about girls have met with instant success in the magazine and newspaper world.

Her Career

She began her writing career as a society editor in Memphis, Tenn., and after a few weeks took over the lovelorn department on the paper and in addition wrote the adventures of a girl, in diary form, for the woman's page of the same paper. The diary cut capers in the circulation department and appeared in the Memphis paper for three years after its beginning.

Then Miss Bedford sought other fields. She traveled around the country, working on various papers and seeing how far other newspapers and features were gotten out. Then she turned to magazine work, writing many stories and selling them too.

Her latest effort, "Broadway Bride," embodies all the elements of a successful newspaper serial story, and then some. In it Natalie Dudley, who is accused by her sister of being afraid to take the things from life she wants most, tries to adapt her philosophy, to the atmosphere of Broadway. She finds love, loses it and finds it again, without surrendering one of the ideals in which she believes.

Strong Characters

There are other splendid characters, too. Nita, her sister, who craves the adulation and applause of a Broadway audience; Alyn Brady, a disillusioned young man seeking to forget his ideals in the care-free life of the world's gayest street, and Charles Young, a serious-minded theatrical producer, who backs Nita in her night club ventures. The characters move in an exciting background of events leading up to a thrilling and unlooked for conclusion. Don't forget, the first chapter of "Broadway Bride" appears in The Gazette, August 4.

Fleur De Lis Print

Oil King As Great Granddad

One of the best pictures ever taken of John D. Rockefeller is this exclusive one portraying him as a great granddad. This charming snapshot, taken on the great Lakewood, N. J., estate of the oil king, shows him affectionately holding the children of Mr. and Mrs. George de Cuevas on his lap. The youngsters, covering a span of nearly 90 years between themselves and their great grandfather, are: John (left), 9 months, and Elizabeth, 2½ years. Mrs. de Cuevas is the daughter of the late Mrs. Charles A. Strong, who, before her marriage, was Bessie Rockefeller.

YOU NEVER KNEW BRAN COULD BE SO DELICIOUS

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is a delightful surprise. It is as good to eat as it is good for you.

This appetizing ready-to-eat cereal protects and relieves you from constipation—and from the headaches, the dizziness, the lack of "pep" that go with it.

Start the whole family on this health-habit tomorrow. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, will prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, eat ALL-BRAN with each meal.

Delicious with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which brings color to cheeks and lips. At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LEGALITY OF BOARD MEMBER DISCUSSED BY STATE EXAMINER

Whether Samuel D. Andrews is a de facto member of the board of education of Xenia Twp. can only be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction, B. B. Vance, state examiner, remarks in a report of a special examination of Xenia Twp. school district, made to Auditor of Stote Joseph T. Tracy.

"If Mr. Andrews is considered a member de facto, then the foregoing acts would be legal," the examiner says, referring to acts performed by Mr. Andrews as a member of that body.

Prosecuting Attorney Marcus McCallister, commenting upon this statement of the examiner, said that a "court of competent jurisdiction" in such a case would be the Court of Appeals, and the method of bringing the matter to the attention of the court would be by "ouster" or quo warranto proceedings. He expressed the opinion that Mr. Andrews is a "de jure", member, or member under the law, and not a de facto member of the group.

Litigation over the alleged illegal appointment of Mr. Andrews as a board member last January to fill a vacancy, and an opinion of the attorney general that he had not been elected by a majority vote, resulted in his resignation, and later re-election by a vote of two members, at a time when the board had only three members.

The examiner held legal, the payment by the board of $390 to Mrs. Loberta Kinzer, widow of Joseph Kinzer a regularly employed teacher in the township for the school year 1927-28. The payment was for services as teacher rendered for three months and one week at $375.75, and $14.25 for janitor services at the school.

A filing was made for illegal payment of $60 to D. H. Barnes as assistant clerk of the school board, issued February 13, 1930.

The examiner remarks: "Upon questioning Mr. Bryson the clerk, he said he did not need an assistant, and had never asked for one. Why the board handed Mr. Barnes this $60 we are not able to understand. We cannot see any service he performed after January 6, 1930. To that date, he had previously been paid."

The report covers the period from December 13, 1929, to May 25, 1931. It was made at the request of a number of tax payers.

DID YOU KNOW? --- By R. J. Scott

The Mysterious Young Man

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC. By LOUISE GERARD

CHAPTER 45

LADY MOORING'S mind had flown back to London, to the Savoy Hotel, to a young girl's surprised face when she had suddenly appeared in Roy Burney's apartments; a mater she had been too distressed to give any thought to at the time. But she remembered now.

Burney had given her a good description of Ann Carmichael's character. She had rejoiced to think that for his wife he had chosen such a high type of modern girl. Always since meeting him, within her had lurked the dread that he might be caugnt by some pretty girl who was only after his money.

Now she guessed that Ann must have seen them together, in some compromising situation.

The countess and Lord Hilary Fenton had reached Honolulu the previous day. The following, they had been going on to Hawaii. But—

Lady Mooring pressed back her own grief, remembering only the boy's.

"So Ann's throwing you over had something to do with me," she said quietly.

Again he made no answer. He was still struggling desperately to find satistactory lies.

"But, Roy, surely you told her the truth!"

Again he could find nothing to say.

"Oh, my darling!" she gasped, her voice full of love and pain. "Then I shall tell her."

"Honey, you mustn't," he cried in a frantic manner.

"Darling, I shall," she said, turning to go.

He clutched at her wrist and stopped her. She tried to free her self, but he held her, watching her with desperate eyes.

A voice broke in on the struggles.

"Here, I say, what are you two fighting about?"

Standing at the entrance of the alcove was Lord Hilary Fenton, slim and tall, young and handsome, who one day would be the Earl of Mooring, looking every inch of him fitted for the position, very different from the meager, undersized youth who held Countess Mooring with thin, anxious fingers.

"And where's the wonderful Ann?" Hilary asked. "I thought she was to be trotted out for my inspection."

"She's thrown Roy over," Lady Mooring panted. "And I won't let him sacrifice himself any more. He never told her the truth. She thinks—Oh, Hilary, you know what anyone might think if . . . if they didn't know how things really were."

"I do, my beautiful mother," he said calmly.

He turned towards Burney.

"Look here Roy, old horse, what's chiefly the matter with you is that you're altogether too financially minded, too one hundred per cent American, for now you're trying to make a corner in this sacrificing business."

Burney's frantic gaze went to the handsome youngster who stood watching him with affectionate admiration.

"But, Hilary, think—" he began.

"My dear chap, I never do. It might wear out my brains. Besides if I don't mind Ann's being told, why should you?"

"The less that know—" Burney began.

"Passed unanimously. But not at your expense. It's quite time I did my bit. So let the matter go."

As Burney hesitated Hilary came closer. Carefully, one by one he peeled off the thin fingers holding his mother's wrist and gripped them in his own.

"Now cut along mater and leave the obstreperous old horse to me. I'll take him out into the garden and talk to him some. Tell Ann she'll find her hero by the sea wall and me in charge of the case."

Lady Mooring went quickly from the lounge.

Once she was out of sight, Hilary picked up Ann's ring and looked at it. Then he examined the contents of the tapestry bag. He drew out the wonderful pearl necklace and scanned it with interest.

"That Ann of yours seems to be an all or nothing sort of young person," he remarked breaking the silence that had descended on them with Countess Mooring's departure. "Fancy giving this back to a fellow after you'd gotten it out of him!"

Indignation broke through the shyness that had fallen on Burney new that he was alone with Hilary.

"She didn't get it out of me. Ann's not that sort. She——"

Then he noticed the amused, teasing gleam on the handsome face watching him and stopped short.

Hilary laughed and laid an affectionate hand on Burney's thin shoulder.

"I was only ragging. You'll have to get used to that if I'm to see as much of you as I should like to."

He tucked his arm through Roy's, and picking up the tapestry bag and the ring, led him out into the garden.

In her bedroom Ann was packing. With feverish haste she was turning out trunks and wardrobe. All the pretty clothes Roy had given her were being dumped into a separate box to be left behind with his name and room number on it. On the bed she flung her own few possessions—her one desire to get out of the hotel as soon as possible and right away from him.

As she stood by the bed there was a knock at the door. Ann scowled, but she did not call "come in". She imagined the visitor was Roy Burney coming to plead further with her. And never again under any condition, would she say another word to him.

The knock came again a trifle louder and more insistent. After a moment's hesitation the door opened.

On the threshold stood Lady Mooring.

Then Ann, usually so well controlled, felt suddenly savage and primitive. She was too angry to wonder why the countess was there. For the second time she was face to face with her supposed rival, the woman whose image had haunted her for the past five months, who had stolen all happiness from her and had made her life a wilderness.

It would have given her endless pleasure to have fallen on Countess Mooring; to have scratched her face and pulled her hair. To keep herself from behaving in this unladylike manner she thumped unmercifully at te clotes se was packing, and ignored her visitor entirely.

Lady Mooring came in and closed the door.

"Ann" she said, calmly. "I want a few words with you."

In an infuriated manner the girl glanced at her.

What did the creature mean by coming to her room? Calling her "Ann" in this barefaced manner, and in a voice, too, that suggested compromise? If that painted golddigger thought they were going to share Roy Burney between them, she was very much mistaken.

"I don't know what you're doing here" the girl snapped. "And I certainly don't want to hear anything you have to say."

With a patinet, understanding air Lady Mooring eyed the young fury.

"Roy tells me you've thrown him over," she said, in a quiet voice.

"And if I have, it's no business of yours."

"It's every business of mine. You see, Ann, I'm—his mother."

As if suddenly paralyzed, the girl stopped slapping and thumping the garments on the bed. Open-mouthed she stared at Lady Mooring.

Ann had the feeling of having been unexpectedly dropped into a deep, dark well of ice-cold water that left her gasping and breathless chilled to the bone, in utter blackness, unable to get back to the world she knew.

All anger vanished.

"You! His mother!"

"A very poor one, I'm afraid, but—it wasn't really my fault."

Ann still could not credit her ears. She took a step or two towards the countess, looking at her in an uncredulous manner.

"What are you talking about?" she gasped.

"It may be a little difficult for you to believe but I'm saying Roy is my son."

"But . . . but he told me he was from the Bowery!"

Cincinnati Welcome To Heroes To Be Broadcast

By MILDRED MASON

RADIO listeners will hear how Cincinnati welcomes the nation's heroes when WLW announcers give an account of that city's reception to Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, intrepid round-the-world fliers Sunday. When the "Winnie Mae" settles down on the runways of the Watson Airport at 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon WLW announcers will be on hand to provide an accurate word picture of the event. The fliers will be welcomed at the field by members of the Greater Cincinnati reception committee and by high city officials. Following brief talks over WLW by the two fliers they will be taken on an inspection of the city.

During the evening a formal public reception will be extended the fliers with a dinner in their honor at the Hotel Gibson. More than 2,000 citizens are expected to attend this function which will also be broadcast over WLW at 7:30 o'clock. The Post-Gatty visit to Cincinnati is being sponsored by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

Broadcast 24 Hours

Another twenty-four hour broadcast over stations WLW and W8XAL, Cincinnati, started Friday noon and will be brought to a close Saturday at 12 o'clock noon. Interesting entertainment has been planned for the entire night so why not go to bed Friday night and leave your radio turned on?

Present All-Downey Program

An all-Downey program will be broadcast during the Camel Quarter hour Saturday evening over the Columbia network through station WKRC Cincinnati, at 6:45 o'clock. Both the vocal and orchestral selections will be songs composed by the star of the program, Morton Downey. Downey wil sing "Carolina Sunshine," "You Made the World Lonesome for Me" and "My Melody of Love to You." The orchestra will play "Now You're in My Arms" and Downey's hit song, "Wabash Moon."

Crooner Is Guest

Mildred Hunt, crooning contralto, will be guest artist on the Club Valspar program over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati Saturday evening from 8:30 to 9 o'clock. Two of the featured numbers on her program will be "I'm Through With Love" and "Must Have Love."

Broadcast from Paris

In an attempted rebroadcast from Paris on Sunday, direct descendants of the Lafayette, Rochambeau and DeGrasse families will be heard over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, when they speak in the hall of Colonial Exposition replica of Mount Vernon at a dinner in their honor. The program is scheduled from 4 to 5 p. m. Many unusual aspects are expected in the transoceanic broadcast which will be introduced by a Paris announcer in the Mount Vernon banquet hall, transmitted across the Atlantic to the RCA shortwave receiving station at Riverhead, Long Island, sent by land lines to NBC and rebroadcast throughout the United States.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

A. A. Milne's "The Dover Road," which apparently winds on forever, will be presented over the radio Friday evening and will be made into a picture soon by Paramount with Eleanor Boardman playing opposite Clive Brook. The play was presented here last season by the Xenia Little Theater Guild.

This will be Miss Boardman's second role at her new studio home. Recently she appeared with Paul Lukas in "Women Love Once" and the mediocre quality of the story did not overcast her clever performance, so she is expected to regain her former popularity.

People who have seen Cecil B. DeMille's "The Squaw Man," say it will help her along. Oddly enough, the star will be directed by William De Mille in "The Dover Road". This will be his first picture at Paramount since "The Doctor's Secret" in which Ruth Chatterton made her talkie bow.

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese film star who is attempting a comeback in the talkies, was a quarterback on Alonzo Stagg's University of Chicago football team back in 1911 and 1912.

The Oriental star entered the university in 1910 from a military school in Japan, and made the team in his sophomore year. "In those days", he says, "there were no intercollegiate associations and games were scheduled two weeks in advance.

"My football might have been all right had I not been trained in Japan in the art of jiujitsu. Sometimes I forgot myself in games and used trick holds in tackling. It always brought a storm of protests from the opponents and several times I was sent off the field by the referee."

In 1927 Hayakawa appeared on the stage in Chicago in "The Love City" and at that time the University Athletic Association gave a dinner in his honor. Afterwards he gave an exhibition of jiujitsu.

Warners will give Kay Francis a chance to change her type just as they did William Powell when he came over from Paramount. The suave Kay will drop a great deal of sophistication in her first role on the new lot. This will be the American heroine of a German play. J. Grubb Alexander is using only the basic idea of the drama for his screen treatment. Kay leaves Paramount in October.

Robert McKenzie whom you will remember as the prosecuting attorney in the trial scene in "Cimarron", has on old way of beating dull times in the studios. Mr. McKenzie and his family are running a tent show on the outskirts of Culver City. One daughter, Ella, plays feminine leads: another Fay, twelve takes children's roles and Mrs. McKenzie does character parts. When the head of the family gets work in the films he has a understedy take his play in the show and playing such old-timers as "Laff That Off" and "The Man From Oklahoma", the McKenzie family is paying the grocery bills and putting money in the bank.

VOLCAH E. WEAVER RETIRED FARMER, IS REMOVED BY DEATH

Volcah Ellis Weaver, 88, Prominent retired farmer, died at his home, 513 S. Detroit St., Thursday evening at 7:35 o'clock. He had been in failing health a year and had been confined to bed for the past two weeks.

Mr. Weaver was born in New Burlington October 2, 1842, the son of Samuel and Anna Ellis Weaver, both members of pioneer families in that vicinity. He was actively engaged in farming in that vicinity until 1899 when he retired nd moved to this city. His marriage to Miss Arabelle Peterson took place October 3, 1877 and she preceded him in death twelve years. He was a member of the First Reformed Church.

Mr. Weaver is survived by three children: Charles A. Weaver, prominent Xenia business man and proprietor of the C. A. Weaver clothing store; Mrs. Schuyler N. McClellan, this city, and Mrs. Norman G. Buxton, Johnstown, O. Three grandchildren, Charles Ellis Weaver, Schuyler Jr. and Arabelle McClellan also survive. Mr. Weaver was the last of his immediate family.

Funeral services will be held at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Dr. E. W. Thornton, Cincinnati, a relative of the family. Burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the home Friday evening after 7:30 o'clock.

NEW STREET LIGHTS TO ILLUMINE XENIA ON SATURDAY NIGHT

and traffic signal systems, Xenia will celebrate soon, the removal of twenty-one poles from Detroit St. in the completion by six utilities of the task of removing a large portion of aerial construction from the business section.

City Manager M. C. Smith has been informed that the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., will send a crew of men to Xenia from Chicago Monday to begin the work of taking down the poles, after the Pennsylvania, The Western Union Telegraph Co., and the Postal Telegraph Co., complete removal of their plants. It is expected that another week will see the poles removed.

Definite steps toward pole elimination and boulevard lights were first taken when City Manager M. C. Smith called a meeting of representatives of the utilities using the poles, for last February 24. Several conferences followed. The city manager explained that the city had plans to improve Main and Detroit Sts. with installation of a "White Way boulevard lighting system," and expected the utilities to effect removal of their poles as agreed upon in May and June 1929.

Co-operation on the part of the various utilities resulted, and an agreement was reached for completion of the program on or about August 1.

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co., Dayton Power and Light Co, and the Dayton and Xenia Railway Co., the three other utilities using the poles, have finished removal of the plants, and re-routing them by underground and aerial construction in alleys and side streets.

Representatives of the six utilities held one of the final conferences for inspection of the work Thursday afternoon. Re-routing of the systems has been from Collier to Galloway on Main St., and from Church to Third on Detroit.

The new police signal system which goes into effect with the new traffic lights is another metropolitan feature, and replaces old red lights suspended overhead by wires.

New traffic lights will go in operation at Market and Detroit, Church and Detroit, Second and Detroit, Third and Detroit, Home Ave. and Detroit and Five Points, the intersection of Cincinnati Ave., Second St., and West St. Lights have been operating at Main and Detroit and Columbus and Main Sts. and will not be changed. The lights are four-way signals placed at the corners of Market and Detroit, Church and Detroit, Second and Detroit and Third and Detroit, being affixed to the boulevard light posts. The others are overhead.

CHARLES WETZEL CALLED BY DEATH

Charles Wetzel, 79, Zimmerman, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Dayton, shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon following an illness of three weeks. He became ill at his home three weeks ago and was removed to the hospital Monday.

Mr. Wetzel was born in Zimmerman July 23, 1852 and spent his entire life there. For many years he was a prominent farmer in that vicinity but retired from active work about four years ago.

Mr. Wetzel is survived by three sons: Daniel C. Wetzel, captain of the Dayton police department; William Wetzel, Trotwood, O., and Elmer Wetzel, Bellbrook. A daughter, Mrs. Tillie Love, Dayton, also survives.

Funeral services will be held at the Progressive Dunkard Church, Zimmerman, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of the Rev. Ida Miller. Burial will be made in Mt. Zion Cemetery.

INFANT DIES

An infant son born to Mr .and Mrs. W. M. Brooks, 15 Branch St., died Thursday afternoon at 2:15 o'clork, a few hours after birth. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks have another child, a son. Burial was made in Woodland Cemetery Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

WHITE WAY SYSTEM READY

Plan No Ceremony; Traffic And Police Signals To Be Used

Xenia's new "White Way" will blaze forth Saturday night, and the city take its place as one of the best illuminated of Ohio's smaller municipalities when electricity is turned on in fifty-two boulevard lights, in the business section.

The simple act of turning a switch by the foreman in the sub-station of the Dayton Power and Light Co. on S. King St., will be the only ceremony in connection with the affair.

At the same time Xenia will inaugurate its new traffic lighting system, signals flashing on at eight chief intersections.

The traffic lighting system, turned on for its first test Thursday afternoon, showed minor defects which had to be rectified. A force of electricians at once went to work remedying these troubles, working until 10 o'clock Thursday night. Another test was set for Friday afternoon. It was planned to have everything in readiness to flash on the signals as part of the city's new "White Way" Saturday night.

E. H. Heathman, local manager for the Dayton Power and Light Co., will personally supervise the inauguration of the boulevard system. At the substation, instructions have been given to watch the skies for sufficient darkness, and to turn on the current when that time arrives, bringing to Xenia people, the realization of a dream of years.

The boulevard system, extending two squares in four directions on Main and Detroit Sts. from their intersection, covers the section from Main to Galloway on the west, Detroit to Church on the north, Detroit to Third on the south and Main to Collier on the east.

The 400 candle power lamps will give a diffusion of light that will make the business section a "white way" in reality, when Saturday night throngs on downtown streets, see the radiance flash from more than half a hundred tall standards flanking the principal throughfares.

The tall standards, officials of the power company explain, give a greater diffusion of light, thus affording superior illumination for the business district. Old style illumination thus displaced has been in use, with slight changes, ever since Xenia adopted electricity as a means of lighting its streets.

Xenia people, have, however, for many years dreamed of a boulevard system. As far back as 1917 a movement was originated here looking forward toward the eventual adoption of boulevard lights.

Two months ago the Dayton Power and Light Co. set about to complete electrification of the streets in this modern manner.

The system to be placed in effect here is the same as is in use successfully and satisfactorily in Wilmington, officials of that company explain.

Along with the new boulevard

"COFFEE BANDITS" FLEE FROM BULLETS

CLEVELAND, July 31—This city's "coffee bandits" made their third appearance in as many days today and were the objects of four shots fired by the manager of a restaurant whom they held up and robbed of $45.

None of the shots, which were fired by Tom Pappas, manager of the Busy Bee restaurant and the victim of the robbery, was believed to have taken effect.

The pair entered the restaurant, ordered a cup of coffee each and then robbed Pappas when he served their order.

EXTEND SEARCH FOR THREE BANDITS

CANTON, O., July 31— An intensive hunt for three daring bank bandits who held up and robbed the Brewster Banking Company at Brewster, O., fifteen miles from here, yesterday and escaped with $40,000 in cash and bonds, was underway throughout Northern Ohio today.

Stark, Summit and Cuyahoga County authorities were searching for Frankie Mitchell, escaped Akron bank robber, in connection with the bold robbery. Descriptions of the one of the trio fit Mitchell, who escaped several months ago while being taken to Ohio State Penitentiary, Akron police said.

GRAF RETURNS AFTER EVENTFUL TRIP OVER ARCTIC WASTE LAND

Valuable Scientific Discoveries Made On Voyage

FRIE DRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 31.—With an Arctic voyage of discovery added to its list of splendid achievements, the Graf Zeppelin arrived back at its little nome town on the shore of the Lake of Constance at 4:55 a. m. today.

Most of the population of this town, famous as the headquarters of Zeppelins, were present to greet the Graf with loud "hochs" as she came down from the sky to repose in one of the great hangars.

The log of the Graf now includes, besides the dirigible's penetration of the Arctic Circle, a voyage round the world, a crossing of the equator, flights to both hemispheres and passages over five continents.

Further details of the voyage to the Arctic became known when the Graf disembarked its fifteen passengers, a dozen of whom were scientists and explorers.

The expedition discovered a new mountain range which members said they believed to be the highest in the Arctic. More than 5,000 feet high it stretches, they said, from Northeast Cape to the Taimyr Sea, a distance of 175 miles.

Existence of the Byrrange Mountains, between the Taimyr Sea and Dickson Island, was also definitely established. This range was found to be 3,000 feet high.

Professor Moltschanov, one of the Russian members of the expedition, revealed that four of his new weather ballons were released during the flight and signalled valuable data automatically from great heights.

The Zeppelin had been isolated from radio contact with the outside world for thirty hours by an atmospheric barrier which he termed a "heavy-side layer," the professor said.

Passengers described the fright of polar bears, schools of walrus and Arctic birds when they first saw the silvery dirigible.

A mystery of the flight, a loss of all his money by Professor Moltschanov, had not been solved when the Zeppelin was stowed away in its hangar. The Russian scientist woke up one morning while over Franz Josef Land to find his wallet missing from a pocket.

Judges Select Eleven From Correct Solutions

Names of the winners of the Fair Page guessing contest will be found in boxes in the different ads on the double page Fair ad in this issue.

The contest aroused great interest throughout the county and scores of answers were received. Every answer was given careful attention and all of the correct answers were placed in a large box which was shaken about so there could be no possible partiality in choosing winners.

Then the judges, J. Robert Bryson, secretary, of the fair board, and Clifford Brace, manager of the Uhlman store, drew the envelopes that contained the lists that will receive the gifts.

The large number of correct answers proved that literally hundreds of people in this locality are clever in disciphering puzzle contests. The Gazette, the fair board and the merchants are truly sorry that every one who correctly worked out the contest could not receive a prize, but they feel sure that every one who took part will remember that only eleven out of the great number who contested could receive the prizes and will be good enough sports to congratulate the winners.

Turn to the fair page and find out who will receive the free tickets to the fair and what gift each one will also receive from one of the advertising merchants.

GOODYEAR COMPANY SHORTENS ITS WEEK

AKRON, O., July 31.—Effective immediately, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company today announced a temporary shortening in the length of its working week because of a seasonal drop in demand.

Plant No. 2 will be operated on four six-hour shifts daily while employes in Plant No. 1 will work in three seven-hour shifts five days a week. The reduction in hours was made rather than a reduction in the number of employes, it was said.

TURKEY FETES LONG DISTANCE FLYERS; MAY CONTINUE TRIP

Mustapha Kemal To Honor Americans; Flyers Now Rest

ISTANBUL, TURKEY, July 31—Russell Boardman and John Polando, who established a new nonstop distance record by flying 5,014 miles from Brooklyn, N. Y. to this exotic meeting place of east and west, were being feted today by Turkish officials and members of the American colony here.

So for they have not confined the report that they would, having achieved their objective, continue their flight round the world. The two Massachusetts flyers said that they would remain in Istanbul about three days.

After their forty-nine hour vigil while their black and gold plane, the Cape Cod, soared over the Atlantic and western Europe to drop unexpectedly down at the San Stephano airdrome here yesterday, the two newest heroes of the air, slept long and soundly.

The aviators had intended to continue on to Angora, the new capital of Turkey, far inland on the Anatolian Plains founded by Mustapha Kemal. However, when they found that the dictator who has almost succeeded in making and occidental country out of Turkey was at present in Stamboul, the old Turkish section of Istanbul, they cancelled the trip.

During their stay here, Turkish officials said, they would be received by Kemal.

On Saturday, the two men will be guests of honor at a tea at the American summer embassy at Yenikeuy on the Black Sea. Among other guests will be Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French aviators, who, till yesterday held the record broken by the Cape Cod. They flew from Paris to Manchuria, a distance of 4,912 miles, in September, 1929.

Boardman and Polando left Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., at about six o'clock Tuesday, almost simultaneously with Pangborn and Herndon.

Boardman laconically told the story of the flight.

"Boy, oh boy!" he exclaimed, "did we carry the mail! It was like flying a midnight express. We didn't see anything but weather, and that was pretty fierce. Only now and then were we able to penetrate the fog and clouds to make out important landmarks.

"It was like going through a tunnel and waiting for that pin point of light at the other end."

CAPONE TRIAL SEPTEMBER 8

Permitted To Change Guilty Plea

CHICAGO, July 31—"Scarface Al" Capone, reputed gangland czar, today was permitted to withdraw his plea of guilty to federal charges of income tax violations and to enter a plea of not guilty.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson set September 8 as the date for the booze kings' trial on the income tax indictments. On that day Judge Wilkerson also will rule on Capone's motion to withdraw his plea of guilty to the indictment charging violation of the prohibition law.

These proceedings followed an unexpected summons issued by Judge Wilkerson asking Capone, his attorneys and the U. S. District Attorney to appear in court at 10 a. m. instead of 2 p. m., the time set yesterday by the court for hearing of the motion to change pleas of guilty to not guilty.

LINDBERGHS ARGUE OVER CANADA ROUTE

OTTAWA, July 31.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and officers of the Royal Canadian Air Forces today were at loggerheads over the route which the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh should take on their flight across northern Canada en route to Japan.

Colonel Lindbergh has refused to accept the suggestion of the Canadians that the northern route selected by the American flyer might be especially dangerous at this time of year, it was understood. He has insisted on taking the uncharted route to the north instead of the more southerly way along the Mackenize River, which the Canadian flyers have urged him to follow, the southern route was followed by Post and Gatty in their record dash around the world.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived here yesterday from North Haven, Me., where they said farewell to their son, Charles Jr.

OBSCURE GRAIN BROKER FORCES UP CORN PRICE

CHICAGO, July 31.—One man, a little known trader about whom are collecting legends of prowess in grain dealings, was credited by some today with the 15 cent increase in the price of July corn the past week.

Shorts struggled in the board of trade today to buy July corn at 72½ cents a bushel, corn that many sold at sixty cents or less. The sellers must fulfill their contracts today or settle with money.

Thomas M. Howell is reputed to have bought between six and ten million bushels in the past few weeks, single-handed. If this is true, Howell has made more than a million dollars himself and several millions for farmers possessing corn.

Two months ago, Howell was reported to have said 'if corn is not worth more than fifty cents a bushel I am willing to lose some money buying it." It was this firm conviction that the price of the grain was too low that led Howell to issue the buying orders.

CIGARETTE SALES GOOD REGARDLESS OF BUSINESS DROP

Depression Is Felt Slightly; Credit Advertising

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Despite the protracted business depression cigarette production held up remarkably during the twelve months ending June 30 during which the output was 119,632,721,900, a drop of about 300,000,000 from the year before, it was announced today by the internal revenue bureau.

During the 1929 fiscal year, the last full twelve months of prosperity, the production was only slightly larger than in 1930. The supposition has been during the post-war period, when cigarette consumption increased rapidly until 1929, that women smokers were chiefly responsible. Information coming to the internal revenue bureau from the industry, showed there had been an actual decline in sales of cigarettes to women. Whether this was due to the depression or for other reasons was a matter of speculation.

The chief reason for the small decline of cigarette production during the depression has been the intensive national advertising campaigns in the newspapers, through radio broadcasting, magazines and bill boards, in the opinion of officials. Both the cigarette and tobacco manufacturers have conducted some of the most far reaching advertising drives in the history of the industries during the last eighteen months.

Cigar production and consumption has been declining for several years and for the twelve months ending June 30 amounted to 5,686,647,600, a reduction of about 642,000,000. Cigar sales always are harder hit by business depression than cigarettes. Of recent years cigar popularity has been declining, partially due, no doubt, that the smoking public has less leisure and prefers a "shorter" smoke. Restrictions placed on smoking in manufacturing plans, in other places of business and on street cars and subways likewise works in favor of the shorter smoke.

This country annually exports about 3,500,000,000 cigarettes. Although high duties are assessed on American cigarettes in most countries their quality gives them a substantial sale abroad. Cigar exports are substantial for the same reason. The government's annual revenue from cigarettes has exceeded $350,000,000 in recent years, with total tobacco taxes more than $400,000,000.

EX-SHERIFF FREE ON BOND

Caldwell Surrenders To Former Deputy

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 31.—After surrendering to a former deputy, former Scioto County Sheriff Maurice J. Caldwell was free on $5,000 bond today, awaiting trial on charges of inflating his expense accounts.

Caldwell was taken into custody by Al Bridewell, whom he discharged as a deputy but who later was appointed by county commissioners to the sheriff's position, and pleaded not guilty to nine secret indictments yesterday.

Six of the former sheriff's expense accounts revealed an excess of $599 over actual expenditures, County Prosecutor Cameron Meacham said. Three of the indictments charge the former sheriff with perjury.

Caldwell recently resigned at the request of county commissioners. He also is under $2,000 bond by the municipal court on a charge of issuing a false statement.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD BOY RESCUES TWO

TIFFIN, O., July 31.—Eight-year-old John Scheiber today was credited with the rescue of two women, one his mother, from drowning in Mohawk Lake.

The boy pulled his mother, Mrs. Paul Scheiber, and Miss Sadie Slitter, 16, from the water, when he saw his mother attempting to save the girl.

COUNTY LABOR DEMANDS JOBS ON PIKE WORK

Delegation Of Forty Promised Work On Wilmington Pike

A group of about forty Xenia men who made a demand Wednesday afternoon, for the employment of Greene County labor on the Wilmington Pike improvement, under contract by the state highway department, was promised by H. W. Walsh, resident state highway engineer, that he would put forth efforts in their behalf.

As a result, Earl Snyder, superintendent for the Republic Asphalt Co., Dayton, contractor for the state job of widening and resurfacing the road, is gradually replacing the unskilled laborers already in his employ, with men from Xenia and vicinity, Mr. Walsh said.

He promised Mr. Walsh, who asked him to give preference to unskilled laborers from this locality, that he would do so gradually, but could not disrupt his organization by taking on a complete outfit of inexperienced help.

The group demanding employment called first at the office of the county commissioners, in the belief that body had authority. They were referred to the state highway engineer by George H. Stokes, commissioners' clerk.

The grievance expressed to Engineer Walsh was that the contractor for the Wilmington Pike work had brought Dayton men here instead of hiring local labor.

Snyder told Walsh, the latter said, that the few Dayton men in his employ are skilled laborers and finishers, and that he could not replace them by hiring green men. He picked up most of the rest of his organization in Beavercreek Twp., where his company has the Dayton-Xenia Pike improvement, he said.

Mr. Walsh told him that he believed preference should be given to men living in this locality, instead of the western part of the county, wherever it was possible to do so in connection with the Wilmington Pike improvement, and the superintendent agreed to follow the suggestion.

Work on the improvement has been proceeding slowly because the contractor's supply of trucks needed in hauling stone from Melvin, east of Wilmington, is short, it is said.

COLUMBUS MAY LOSE NORTON AIR FIELD

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—Possibility that Columbus may lose Norton Field, which is said to bring approximately $100,000 annually in business to the city, loomed here today when it was learned that other cities are seeking the lease which expires here next June 1.

Cleveland, according to reports, has offered to provide a landing field and hangar to a reserve officers training base and several other cities are understood to have made attractive offers.

City council here has had a proposal under consideration for six weeks to lease the municipal hangar at Port Columbus to the government. Delay in acting upon the proposed lease, however, has opened the way for consideration by the air corps of other cities.

I'LL SAY ITS HOT

Out at Lincoln Park zoo in Chicago we find "Jiggs," the orang-outang, trying his best to keep cool. Someone gave him a fan, but maybe he thinks it takes too much energy to use it, for he seems to be still looking for an easy way of cooling off.

OHIO STILL AWAITS HEAT RELIEF; SOME AREAS ENJOY RAINS

Deaths Occur Along Eastern Seaboard; Relief Promised

By International News Service

Cooling winds and thundershowers today had broken the sweltering heat that has gripped many sections of the country for days.

Parts of the eastern seaboard, however, still suffered from the heat wave. The thermometer climbed to 97 yesterday in Baltimore where thousands sought relief by sleeping in the parks. The national capital looked forward to another scorching day after recording a 97 degree temperature yesterday.

In Boston seven persons died of the heat, but the torrid wave was broken by cooling winds, which promised to keep temperatures in New England and New York in the eighties. Six died of the heat and three were drowned in New York City yesterday where the mercury climbed to 89.

Througout the middle west temperatures were lower although readings above ninety and 100 were recorded in Iowa and Nebraska.

Rains and clouds also brought cooler weather to the Rocky Mountain Region where Pueblo, Colo., with 96 had the highest temperature.

Deaths due to the heat wave that struck the southwest stood at 83 today as temperatures dropped sharply following thunderstorms. Temperatures on the Pacific Coast were normal.

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.— Ohio put on its sunglasses today and with the impatient hope scanned the skies for signs of thunderstorms, long predicted but as yet unarrived, to end the oppressive heat wave that has sent temperatures soaring and caused numerous prostrations.

Rocketed to 102 degrees by street level tabulation, mercury climbed to an official maximum mark of 95 here yesterday. Temperatures from other sections of the state hovered irritatingly about the 100-degree mark, according to reports.

Weather bureau officials today renewed their predictions of relief from thunderstorms.

Two persons were overcome by the excessive heat here yesterday.

STATESMAN BETTER

LONDON, July 31.—The condition of David Lloyd George, former premier and Liberal leader was reported satisfactory by his physicians today. The statesman underwent a major operation Wednesday for haematuria, a kidney trouble.

WAPAKONETA BUSINESS MEN BUY WHEAT AT 75 CENTS TO AID PRICE

WAPAKONETA, O., July 31—Attempting to relieve congestion in the local wheat market, Wapakoneta merchants and business men have started paying Auglaize County farmers seventy-five cents a bushel for wheat which they will store and feed to the birds or the fish next winter, it was learned today.

Participants in the movement generally bought only two bushels. The price paid is approximately double the amount being paid at grain elevators in this section.

Although no organized drive was planned, those who introduced the idea admitted they were hopeful that the plan might prove a solution to the national problem of the wheat surplus.

Buyers were given automobile windshield stickers bearing the words, "I have bought wheat to feed the birds."

News of the plan spread quickly to nearby sections and the local chamber of commerce was flooded with requests for details.

Although it was said that business men probably would purchase not more than 600 bushels on the two-bushel-per-purchaser plan, many other residents of the city and county were expected to join in the movement.

ACHIEVE FAST TIME FROM BERLIN; HAVE CHANCE FOR RECORD

Speedy Flight Over Russia Would Give Pair A Lead

MOSCOW, July 31.—Like a great red eagle, the Bellanca round-the-world plane of Hugh Herndon Jr., and Clyde Pangborn whirled down to the October airdrome here today at 11:52 a. m. (4:52 a. m. Columbus time.)

The flyers came to a pause in the Bray, medieval capital of the Soviet after a night flight from Berlin at high speed, for the young men were out to cut down the time of Post and Gatty in their speedy globe-circling tour. When they left Berlin they had reduced the handicap put on them to fourteen hours.

If they can cut out the delays which held up Post and Gatty in Russia, Herndon and Pangborn still have a chance to reduce the time of the Winnie Mae, although she was a faster plane than the Miss Veedol.

The airmen were delayed on the Berlin-Moscow hop by fog and wind, but were still hopeful of beating the record of Post and Gatty. Their original plans called for stops at Irkutsk and Kharbarovsk, where the present record-holders also descended, but it was understood Herndon and Pangborn might go on beyond Irkutsk if their gasoline supply was sufficient.

The aviators dropped down at Templehof, Berlin, yesterday from Croydon airdrome, London. Earlier in the day they had started from Moyle Grove, the tiny Welsh terminus of the flight through blinding fog across the Atlantic from Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Before they left Pangborn and Herndon heard of the successful termination of the flight of Boardman and Polando, who had started out with them from Brooklyn Tuesday morning.

Owing to the simultaneous arrival of the Graf Zeppelin on its return from the Arctic at Templehof little attention was paid to the Miss Veedol when it settled down at Berlin. It was some time before airport officials realized that another transatlantic plane was on hand but when they did so they gave a cordial welcome to the flyers.

THREE WOMEN HOLD UP SHOP

CHICAGO, July 31.—Three stick-up-women, one old enough to be a grandmother, with white hair and a cultured accent, who robbed a dress shop of a $1,500 fur coat and a purse containing $27 were sought today.

One who handled the gun described as a "peroxide blonde about 45" told the clerk:

"Now listen, dearie, don't pull any fake faints, and keep your mouth shut. This is a stickup and we mean business. I'll fill you full of lead if you don't follow orders. Get into the basement and make it snappy."

RECEIVER ASKED FOR LOAN COMPANIES

COLUMBUS, O., July 31.—An application asking that a receiver be appointed for the National Savings and Loan Co., and the Columbian Building and Loan Co., was filed in common pleas court here today.

The action, which was started by Mrs. Florence Dressel of Reynoldsburg in an effort to conserve the interests of depositers of the two institutions, grew out of the absorption of the National Savings and Loan by the Columbian.

Judge D. J. Reynolds will conduct a hearing on the petition today.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Treasury balance as of July 29, $287,257,142.32; expenditures, $9,283,599.64; customs receipts, $31,825,173.23.

DON'T SLEEP ON THE JOB

Yes! it sure is hot—just the right kind of weather to sprawl out beneath a big shade tree, with a sweating glass of lemonade, tinkling with cracked ice. Would you like to try some of this summer laziness for about a week. Well—why not take a vacation? Here's How!

Look around the house for some of those old articles that you have discarded. If they're at all good, place an ad in the Classified Section of the Gazette. If you can find enough to sell, the ad will give the results. You will probably make enough money from these old things to take a pleasant week-end trip. It's worth trying when the cost is so small.

No Dorcas Class meeting during August. The next meeting will be held September 2 at the home of Mrs. Minnie L. Davis.

The August number of "The Lutheran Courier" will be distributed Sunday. God's suggesions often seem strange to us. It is not easy to follow His directions. How can we follow His directions if we neglect the Church? Good citizenship in any community means good stewardship and regular public worship. Go to church and note the difference in your attitudes.

A Changed World!

He humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him.
—Philippians 2:8,9.

UNWORLDLY men, who live more for the next life than for this, are looked on as fools, even as was Christ. His life apparently was a dismal failure. He died, deserted even by His own apostles, on the shameful cross. Yet He succeeded better than any other of the children of Adam. Dying, He robbed death of its victory, the grave of its sting. Leaving the world, He changed the whole face of the world. By His obedience He became the greatest of conquerors. We, His followers, must help Him carry His cross, daily. So shall we share His victory.

A Prayer for the Times

"O Thou who hast made all nations and hast appointed the bounds of their habitation, we pray for confidence in Thy purpose of love through these uncertain times. We are conscious of failure. Help us to know that except the Lord do build the house they labor in vain that build it. Bless the leaders of men all over the world that they may be delivered from obstinacy, duplicity, and self-adulation, and especially our own representatives, that they may serve their country without hypocrisy. Remember our President and his councillors in these trying times, that they may not surrender principle to expediency, but may be an example to all the people. Lord, lead us to the better day when Thy will shall be done on earth as it is in heaven. For Jesus sake. Amen"

—Presbyterian Banner.

"Cast Your Bread Upon the Waters". It pays to help others. It seems that two boys, Mr. Hoover and another one, working their way through the university, hit upon the scheme of engaging Paderewski to give a piano recital and of devoting the profits to their board and tuition. Paderewski's manager charged $2,000 and the receipts of the evening amounted to $1,600. The boys went to Paderewski and turned over to him the $1,600 with a promissory note for $400, explaining that they would pay him the balance as soon as they could earn it. The great pianist hearing the story gave them back the $1,600 telling them to pay all the expenses of the concert, deducting ten per cent form themselves, and returning the balance to him.

Years afterwards, when Paderewski was premier of Poland and his people were starving, tons of food began to come from the allies in the west. The prime minister made a trip to Paris to thank Mr. Hoover who was directing the distribution, but Mr. Hoover said "I knew the need was great. Besides you helped me once when I was a student at college and was in a hole."—Homiletic Review.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sollers, of this city, left by motor Wednesday night for Henrietta, Okla., where they were called by the illness of Mrs. Soller's brother, Mr. John Sutton. Mr. Sutton and family will return here with Mr. and Mrs. Sollers next week.

XENIA BAKES UNDER HIGH TEMPERATURE AS RELIEF DALLIES

"Slightly cooler" Friday night, was the only hope given by the weather bureau for relief from the heat wave sweeping the country.

There was little or no promise of relief through rains, although scattering clouds partially obscured the blistering sun Friday afternoon.

Themometer readings in Xenia for Friday were:

6 a. m.	78
7 a. m.	79
8 a. m.	81
9 a. m.	86
10 a. m.	89
11 a. m.	90
12 noon	92
2 p. m.	96

Xenia thermometors reached 98 degrees Thursday afternoon, the high record being made at 3:30.

Poems that Live

ON THE LIFE OF MAN

LIKE to the falling of a star,
Or as the flights of eagles are,
Or like the fresh spring's gaudy hue,
Or silver drops of morning dew,
Or like a wind that chafes the flood,
Or bubbles which on water stood:
Even such is Man, whose borrowed light
Is straight called in and paid to night.
The wind blows out, the bubble dies,
The spring entombed in autumn lies;
The dew dries up, the star is shot,

WHERE GANG GUNS MOWED DOWN CHILDREN

Gangdom's guns which mowed down five youngsters in New York's tenement district, instead of the unidentified man who was "on the spot," are responsible for one of New York's most revolting crimes in recent years. As the children played in front of ther homes machine guns pointing from a passing car, aimed at an unidentified man, cowering against two buildings, felled them. Top photos are of Baby Michael Bevilacuia, who received two wounds in his back and the riddled carriage in which he was sleeping. STATE RACCOON FARM MAY BE ESTABLISHED AT HATCHERY HERE

BUCKEYE LAKE, July 31—Establishment of several raccoon farms in Ohio was authorized here today by the state conservation council.

The Xenia Fish Hatchery and the Roosevelt Game Preserve, Scioto County, were tentatively selected as sites for the farms. A third will be established on some location not yet selected, the council decided

Members of the council said game protectors would be required to assist in the propagation of the raccoons and that the plan is a part of a program to give fishermen and hunters "more for their license money."

Harry E. Rice, president of the Greene County Fish and Game Association could not be reached Friday afternoon, but another officer said that the local group has been urging the establishment by the state of a raccoon farm at the hatchery, for two years.

Raccoons are now being raised at the hatchery by Ernest Harner, supervisor of the hatchery and game protector. The animals were turned over to the hatchery by members of the former Fox and Coon Hunters' Association, which merged with the Fish and Game Association.

DAYTON AND XENIA PIKE PARTLY OPEN

The Dayton and Xenia Pike is now open to traffic between Xenia and Zimmerman, Henry W. Walsh, resident engineer for the state highway department, said Friday.

The section between Zimmerman and Grange Hall will be opened next Friday, doing away, at least temporarially, with a detour which has been in effect between Dayton and Xenia for several weeks. Some one-way lanes are being used on the part of the pike under repair.

Work of re-building three and one third miles of the road by the Republic Asphalt Co., Dayton, is progressing slowly. The road is being constructed of water bound macadam.

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR PAYING TAXES

With the expiration Saturday of the additional twelve day extension of the June tax paying period, County Treasurer Helen Dodds said Friday that the treasurer's office will be kept open through the noon hour and until 3 p. m. Saturday for the accomodation of belated tax payers.

Collections were fair Thursday and Friday the treasurer said. She was unable to say whether or not the delinquent list would be unusually large.

Commissioners granted the second extension of the tax paying period, beyond the customary thirty days extension, because of the economic depression, financial stringency faced by so many, and in order to accomodate farmers unable to market their wheat.

BANDIT ESCAPES IN DUEL WITH POLICE

CLEVELAND, July 31— A gunman and robber suspect escaped in an east side park here today after a running gun battle with police which started when a radio cruiser squad became suspicious of unmatched licence plates on the fugitive's automobile.

No one was believed injured in the volley of shots which were exchanged between two policemen and the fleeing gunman.

The man escaped after abandoning his stolen automobile. The machine was wrecked when it crashed into a tree.

Examination showed it to be the same machine used by a robber a few minutes earlier in holding up a gasoline station near the scene of the gun battle, police said. Loot of $110 was obtained at the gas station.

DOC M'MILLEN IS WINNER AT TOLEDO

TOLEDO, O., July 13—Doc McMillen, veteran Ohio reinsman, today boasted two victories in last night's harness race program at Fort Miami.

After scoring with Senator McElyo in the second and third heats of the 2:15 class trot, McMillen took all three heats of the 2:20 class trot with Just the Guy.

Although Sep Palin's lusty volo looked good to the crowd at the start, Nancy Nap won the feature, the 2:13 class pace, in straight heats.

Nancy Nap's win was a continuation of a series of victories for Henry Thomas of Springfield, Ill. Lusty Volo finished sixth in the first heat and second in the last two.

Zombro Hanover, favorite in the 2:20 class pace, won without difficulty.

How to Care for Your Eyes

By DRS. WILKIN & WILKIN, Optometric Eye Specialists

The Growing Infant

As the period of infancy is passing and the child begins to employ his eyes intelligently about him and notices surrounding objects, the time arrives when the character of the visual function should be observed.

Some children are able to see near objects with ease and distinctness, yet cannot recognize persons across the street; others who can see nicely at a distance may not be able to observe near objects as well while there will be a few who do not have keen vision at any distance.

Parents are too inclined to treat children as if all eyes were born with similar formation and endurance and this error is productive of many evils which show themselves when school instruction is commenced.

Note:—this is the seventh of a series of articles published in this paper, in the interests of better eye care.—Adv.

Little Orange Colored Can Brings Health to Thousands!

ALBERT COLE

There it is in the druggist's window, the little orange colored can.

A full month's supply of almost magic like powder that dissolves in your drinking water.

"Drink your way to health," is the slogan that offers you instant relief from indigestion, stomach trouble, and all kinds of intestinal ailments. Sometimes heartburn, rheumatism, high blood pressure, neuritis and other ailments make you feel hopeless.

Dr. Parker's Treatment, a natural compound of vegetable remedies, dissolved agreeably in your drinking water, goes right to the spot. Thousands report immediate results when other remedies have failed.

Cleanse your intestines, purify your system of poisons. Get rid of sour stomach, bloat, gas, and you will be a new person.

Make this amazing 7-day test. It's guaranteed. Take home a month's treatment, it costs only $1.25. Put a tablespoonful of powder in the glass of water you drink. Then—if in 7 days—you do not experience wonderful, blessed relief—These druggists listed below will refund your money instantly.

Dr. Parker's Treatment calms the nerves, giving you rest at night—vigor and vitality in your work during the day. Enjoy your meals and eat anything you like. It's safe, simple, pleasant—pure as sunshine.

Listen to Mr. Albert Cole, 928 Cauden Avenue, Columbus, O., as he tells about his experience with Dr. Parker's Treatment: ...."No words can describe the misery that I suffered for over seven years from chronic indigestion and constipation and from sick headaches, biliousness and gas on the stomach. I tried one medicine after another. The best I could get was only temporary relief and not even that after a while. I felt sluggish and miserable all the time. A friend induced me to try DR. PARKER'S Treatment. Wonder of Wonders. Where all others failed DR. PARKER'S produced instant relief. Before I had taken half a can, my stomach and bowels started to act properly, the poisons were driven from my body and after taking only three cans my aches and pains vanished. I give all credit and praise to DR. PARKER'S Treatment for being able to enjoy life once more. No family should be without a can of it." Recommended by your druggist who spent years learning about the value of medicine. Ask him about DR. PARKER'S Treatment.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Woe is me for my hurt! my wound is grievous: but I said, Truly this is a grief, and I must bear it.—Jeremiah, x, 19.

GANDHI'S POLICY

Something of Mahatma Gandhi's ability to dominate the minds of 250,000,000 fellow-countrymen is discovered in the marginal observations with which he decorated the publication of his rules of life, as well as in his "ten commandments" themselves.

Gandhi has frequently been compared to Lincoln. Certainly there is a Lincolnesque flavor to this remark of his: "It would be presumptuous of me to attempt to lay down rules for the conduct of others, but I don't mind telling you what my own rules have been."

Abraham Lincoln did not touch strong drink. What others touched was, according to his own firm admission, their business. What rules other men follow do not interest Gandhi. All that vitally concerns him is conducting his own life along these lines:

Truth.

Love.

Chastity.

Temperance in food, abstinence from alcohol and habit-forming drugs.

Abstinence from the possession of material things for their own sake.

Neighborliness.

A Jeffersonian belief in the equality of all mankind.

A recognition of the equal divinity of all of the great religious faiths of the world

Fearlessness.

Christians and Jews, who lean heavily on the ten commandments of Moses, will be forced to admit that Mahatma Gandhi has evolved from his meditations a scheme of life as noble as that to which they have been giving lip service all these centuries.

Gandhi may be metaphorically crucified on the cross of "paramountcy;" but the truths by which he lives will never perish from the earth. They are as eternal as human experience. They explain much of his secret influence over his fellow-men. The puissance of empire, external and objective, crashes when it strikes the stone-wall of personal character, as inspired by such a man and such a philosophy.

ADMINISTRATION RIGHT

The administration in Washington is opposing postponement of the impending arms parley, which some of the diplomats want to put off for a year, or two, because 1932 promises to be a time of great poitical activity in many parts of the world. Washington is right. If the interest in disarmament for the promotion of peace is not strong enough in the countries chiefly interested to command attention in spite of the excitement of domestic politics; if the question of arms reduction cannot be kept separate from party issues and made a question of non-partisan statesmanship, then the world is not yet ready to go into a disarmament parley that will be something more than an ineffective successor of a series of ineffective predecessors, and get real results. When civilization is actually in earnest about peace and disarmament, it will not be necessary to be fussy about selecting the time for arriving at the necessary formal agreement. Any time will do, and the sooner the better.

TO ENTER OXFORD

R. C. Sheriff, author of that never forgettable play, "Journey's End," is preparing to enter Oxford university as an under graduate. He is 34 years old and hopes to be able to get a Bachelor of Arts degree in two years. Mr. Sheriff says there are two reasons why he is entering college. He thinks "it will be fun" and he wants the B. A., which will be the reward of successful study, so that if he "fizzles out" as a writer he can go to teaching school.

We suspect that Mr. Sheriff is both more and less honest than a good many men that matriculate in institutions of higher learning; and that while he hopes to enjoy his college course, there is behind his light remark about "fizzling" a desire to round out for his own delight and satisfaction, an education which the circumstances of his recent life may lead him to consider defective. This indicates that he has kept his head in face of the sensational success and fame that have become his lot.

But you would not expect a man who could write "Journey's End" to do anything else.

CROSSING ACCIDENTS

Accidents at railroad crossings continue with some regularity, and will for many years. The old signs which people used to obey in the days before automobiles. "Stop, look, and listen," are not much heeded now. The man who drove a horse was apt to obey those notices. If he heard a train coming he would usually wait until it had passed.

But the automobile driver hates to stop at railroad crossings. He thinks it would seem over timid. There may be cars back of him which he thinks might run into him, or he thinks their drivers would regard him with contempt if he showed caution.

The number of automobile drivers who approach a railroad crossing without even glancing to see if a train is coming, is astonishing. People should listen with all their ears, and they should run as quietly as possible, so they could hear a whistle or a bell. We have had too many such accidents in Ohio.

Barring gold as legal tender and making silver the sole coin medium of business, as they have done in Mexico, is rather a reversal of the prevalent tendency, but it may work out very well in Mexico, where they have their special troubles.

We have known many dogs to bark as the Chicago judge put it, "in the line of duty," among them one who regularly tries to drown out a loud speaker.

Whether Mr. Fall is "physically fit" for prison or not, prison is a fit place for him to be in.

BY JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK, July 29.—A night at the "Follies," second visit:

Heard in the lobby just before curtain time: "Don't be silly! They aren't real elephants. How could they be?" And, "I remember the show of 1922—"

There you have synthesized the "Follies" ingredients. Spectacle—five gigantic imitation elephants clump forward, bearing nudish girls on their tusks. And memory—Ziegfeld knows how to dramatize the tug of vanished happiness: he keeps his beauties hazy, shimmering, far-off. .....

Backstage. Bernie Sobel, immaculate "Follies" press-agent, twirling his cane; volatile, forever rushed, darting here and there, thumbing late editions for mention of the show. Now the big elevator crawling up—packed with girls who are clad in nearly nothing but who are sexless in the bright glare on greasepaint and mascara. They chatter about cues, about clothes, about other girls who should or shouldn't have done so and so. They are happy, eager, young. "Follies" girls! They know it.

The notice on the bulletin-board: "Sorry! Girls who disfigure themselves with sunburn will not be permitted to go on."

Gladys Glad—"most perfect show-girl of all time." In her dressing room (D-1), which she shares with Ethel Borden, neice of the late great Harriman of banking fame.....Gladys: "I've got a column, too, and more papers than you!"

Why did she pick that fantastically lush name? It misrepresents her. She is a girl of intelligence, even a certain strength in her too-perfect profile. And prouder, apparently, of her syndicated beauty column than of being one of the luminous showgirls of girlshow history. Almost anybody, as you may have concluded, can be a columnist!

Ethel Borden, whom Ziegfeld summoned after his wife (Billie Burke) had seen her in an amateur society show: "There's nothing in that society life. It's empty as a drum. I needed the money, too."

Up again—to the sixth-tier room of the mad Britons, musicians who smash and chew pieces out of their violins. "How's this for a story: the guy that bites a hunk out of his violin can't get his steaks tender enough. That's a good one!" Gene Gory, responsible for most of the violent antics of the orchestra, whose father was a clown in Europe; quiet-eyed.....

Jack Pearl, talking in a corridor with one of the electricians—and in English without a trace of accent, despite woolen-heavy dialect on the stage.

Now downstairs: a glimpse of the show and intermission. The delicatessen across the street completely deserted, while a drugstore on the same block with the theatre packs them ten deep around the soda counter. Crossing the street must be so risky it takes the fun out of an evening.

The little bespectacled man sitting in his $25,000 Isotta-Fraschini watching the stage door, later.... His tribe has decreased. Right behind the big car is a nice-looking young fellow in a new Chevrolet, waiting, too.

WITH A FAST CAMERA

Cheerful word for readers in Chicago and vicinity: Chicago is one of the most law-abiding towns in the United States. Ranking second in population, it ranks 39th in homicides.....

Herbert Fields, of the Fields-Rodgers-Hart music and libretto team, authors of a score of Broadway hits, took a test for his automobile driver's license the other day. When asked to roll down hill he flunked utterly .....

WASHINGTON.—The London Daily Express, which speaks especially for ultra-Tory sentiment in England, predicts "a new triple alliance," consisting of Great Britain, the United States and Germany.

Whether significantly or not, the three countries are named in that order.

The Express does not, indeed, prophesy that the task of linking their destinies can be accomplished rapidly. It recognizes that the process must be gradual.

The thing it does point out is that the seven-power conference in London relieved Germany's economic troubles only very temporarily, if at all. A huge loan to the Fatherland, for a term of a generation or two, soon will be necessary, argues the Express, to save the Teutonic people from catastrophe which the whole world will feel. The British and Americans, says the Express, simply cannot afford such a disaster, but will have to put up the capital to prevent it.

And then, adds the London newspaper, the new triple alliance "will begin to take form."

Of course the average American will answer that any idea of Yankee participation in an amalgamation of Yankee and European interests is perfectly ridiculous.

Nevertheless, it is interesting to note that it is seriously forecast by an unquestionably highly influential English daily.

It is clear also that an arrangement of the sort outlined would be vastly desirable from the British standpoint—with Britain furnishing the experience, America furnishing the money and Germany making itself generally useful as a kind of junior partner.

The truth is that the London conference has revealed the British as mightily apprehensive of the growth of French power—just as they were so suspicious of Germany during the period of the latter's development for a decade and a half preceding the World war's outbreak.

In fact, historians' attention has been attracted by the persistency with which English statesmanship has maneuvered to the disadvantage of whatever other nation happened to be, for the nonce, Britain's chief rival.

It chanced that Germany looked formidable and France not particularly so, for a considerable length of time leading up to the assassination at Serajevo; whence it followed that England gazed increasingly askance upon the Teutons, but was on the most cordial terms with the Gallic republic. Now that the French look formidable in turn, the British attitude toward them is not so friendly, but is most helpful toward the beaten Germans, who are too weak to be a source of anxiety to anyone at present.

Under the circumstances, perhaps it is not surprising if France mistrusts England of wishing to strengthen Germany as an offset against French potentialities, which would account for a Gallic disinclination to encourage a program of German rehabilitation over-enthusiastically.

However, the English themselves are too hard up to lend to the Germans the aid which otherwise they might desire to extend to them; if so, it would suit them admirably to have America finance their policy.

Occasionally, to be sure, the suggestion is made that America is now England's chief rival, thus making Americans logically the objects of Britain's fiercest jealousy—as the Germans were before the war, and the Russians previously, and the Spaniards still longer ago, before Spanish greatness suffered reverses from which it never recovered.

Without contending that John Bull is not, possibly, somewhat jealous of Uncle Sam, allowance nevertheless must be made for the circumstance that they do not live at such perilously close quarters as Europe's neighbors; they are not political rivals, though decidedly so commercially.

It is not, then, hard to see why a "triple alliance" as outlined by the London Daily Express, would be a heaven-sent lineup, according to British calculations.

The Express evidently fancies the notion so much that it could not resist discussing it.

The Express, by the way, has an American-born editor, though long ago naturalized as a subject of King George. It is Lord Beaverbrook's paper but its active head is Ralph Blumenfeld, a native of Wisconsin, who originally went to London as a correspondent of the New York Herald in James Gordon Bennett's day.

WATER VAPOR RIDES INTO CYCLONE ON AIR

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

A large area of disturbed atmosphere developed into a moving formation, gathers to itself more than merely air from the surrounding geographical areas: The air carries watery vapor (moisture) resulting from evaporation over ocean surfaces, lakes, rivers, moist lands. This moisture is carried for many hundreds of miles. As the air from the south is the warmer air, and as evaporation goes on more rapidly the warmer the air, it naturally follows that the winds blowing into the cyclone from the south are more heavily moisture laden than the winds from any other direction. As south winds flow into the southeast quadrant of the cyclone, there, too, we may expect the cloudy weather and the rains.

ALL of US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I Was Frightened
Huddled in a Hole I Waited
By MARSHALL MASLIN

We were living in a hole in the ground. It was a big, covered hole that stretched for hundreds of feet in every direction. And the guns thundered overhead and the earth shook when the shells fell and when our guns answered in fury.

The great hole had been a quarry before the war. Men had worked there, taking out rocks for roads; now we huddled there for safety. There we were, men and horses, all crowded together in a hole in the ground. There we ate and slept and boasted and wished the war was over.....And there was even a chapel near my bed, a chapel carved beautifully from the white stone by some soldier who had been a stonecutter before the war. Between me and that underground altar a curtain had been drawn.

The sun dropped below the smoky horizon. We went up for a few moments to see it leave us in angry splendor, and to dodge a few shells that came too close..... Then we went down to our cave again, to eat and to talk about the war and to get what rest we could. Soon there were only snores of men, and the whinny of horses and the stamp of their hoofs and a far rumbling overhead. So we fell asleep.

And woke, it seemed almost at once. The cave was gray with dawn. The clang of an alarm was sounding. Men were running about. And an invisible enemy was invading our den.....Gas! GAS! It had crept along the ground, it had found the openings, it was among us now—like a weasel among the rabbits. I fumbled and found and put on my flimsy gas mask, and hoped all would be well.

I was probably afraid. I prefer not to be certain of that. But I KNOW I was angry. It seemed so indecent, so humiliating, so outrageous for human beings to be hiding in a gray hole in the ground with grotesque masks about their faces, hoping they would not die, fearing they might, unable to fight Death away from them.

Then, as I waited furiously, I saw the curtain of the chapel pushed aside and I saw humble soldiers going to kneel and pray and gain a certain peace before they met their possible deaths. I saw them go in and come out again, and it seemed to me that, after they had prayed, their attitudes were more relaxed and that they faced the Thing more calmly. I could not see their faces but I KNEW that now they did not mind their danger so much.

It was not my church they knelt in, it was not my faith they had, and I do not think I prayed. At least, I do not remember going into any chapel and getting upon my knees reverently. But I have a feeling that those peasant-soldiers were doing it for me. And I felt the anger slip away from me and a kind of pity for us all—for the men around me, and for me, too, and even for the men across the line—seemed to take its place. And if I had been afraid I was no longer, and I did not feel so much like a defenseless rabbit cowering before the Weasel Death.

It was a curious thing to happen, in a hole in the ground, in time of war.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT

BREAKFAST
Cooked Cereal with Milk
Coffee
DINNER
Liver Dumplings
Squash
Pancake Roll Tea
SUPPER
Pea Soup
Fresh Corn on Cob
Watermelon or Other Fresh Fruit

Today's Recipes

Dumplings.—One-third cup milk and water (half and half), one-half cup sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted butter. Add the milk to the flour and salt, stir in the butter and beat until well mixed. Drop the batter quickly into the gently boiling soup by one-half teaspoonfuls. When the dumplings come to the top, serve the soup at once.

Liver Dumplings.—One pound liver, two tablespoons chopped parsley, two tablespoons chopped onion, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two teaspoons lard or bacon drippings, one cup farina, one can beef consomme. Remove the membrane from the liver and put the liver through a meat grinder twice. Add the finely chopped parsley and onion to the liver. Then add the salt, pepper, fat and farina. Shape into small balls about one and one-half inches in diameter and drop into the boiling consomme, to which one can of water has previously been added. Simmer slowly for five minutes and serve piping hot. The broth should be saved and used as soup stock.

Pea Soup Made With Pods.—Two quarts fresh green pea pods (two pounds peas should suffice), two quarts water, four large carrots, cut in long slices; two large onions, sliced; two teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon white pepper, two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour. Wash the pods thoroughly. Add the water, carrots, onions, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer about one hour. Remove the carrots, drain the stock and discard the pods and onions. Melt the butter and cook until golden brown. Add the flour, mix well and to this add a small quantity of the liquid.

Apes Only Animals To Take Cold

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Domestic animals suffer most of the same chronic diseases as man—such as hardening of the arteries, stones in the kidney, etc. These are, however, fortunately not contagious. There are some contagious diseases that are absolutely peculiar to animals—distemper, for instance, which seems to be much like human influenza or measles, but which is never contracted by man. On the other hand certain human infections never afflict the domestic animals—the common cold being the most conspicuous. When experimenters tried to find an animal to study the common cold they discovered that none but our blood brothers, the apes, could be inoculated.

There are, however, many infections which both man and beast can have. Within the year prominence has been given in the press to parrot fever—psittacosis. Several epidemics were reported, most of them being traced to infection of a human who fondled a sick parrot or parakeet.

These diseases may occur in man and animals under several different circumstances. The disease may be common in animals and without difficulty transmitted to man and vice versa.

In septic sore throat the animal is hardly sick at all but human beings are very easily infected, become very sick and death may occur. The disease is carried in milk—and is caused by a streptococcus, a spherical-shaped germ of which there are many varieties. The variety which causes septic sore throat is streptococcus epidemicus.

The germ is normally a human infection and is transmitted to the udders of the cow by human contact, probably by the hands of a dairy workers. A curious and baffling feature of these infections is that the cow's udders, or milk bag, may not be evidently diseased or sore at all, but the germ may become implanted in the milk ducts and enter the milk in enormous quantities.

The disease appears in man usually in epidemics. It was first observed in the United States in 1911, in an epidemic studied by Winslow in Boston. There were 1,400 cases, of which 70 per cent got milk from the same dairy. Many other epidemics have since been studied, the last in 1928 in Lee, Massachusetts, where there were 1,000 cases with 40 deaths in a population of 4,050.

The symptoms in humans follow shortly after drinking the infected milk. There are severe headaches, backaches and grippy pains in the muscles and joints. The temperature goes to 103 and 105. The throat is sore and generally diffusely red, but sometimes there is a localization in the follicles of the tonsils. The disease lasts a week or ten days, with great weakness and prostration.

The only method of prevention is pasteurization of the milk, which appears to be always successful. Health boards are alert to the danger of the disease, and all of them insist on rigid precautions.

Boy Friend Notices The Pretty Girl

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"MY DEAR MISS LEE: I have gone with a boy steadily for one year. Whenever we are out together and we see an attractive girl, he looks at her two or three times.

"It may seem silly, but this antagonizes me greatly. I haven't said anything to him about it. Don't you think it is rather humiliating? M. H."

No, I don't see how it can be humiliating, M. H. It's just as natural for you to look two or three times at an unusually fine-looking man when with the boy friend. Don't tell me that you don't. It's human nature.

Do you expect the boy friend to be so in love with you that he is absolutely blind to anyone else? If so, you're in for a lot of trouble, my dear. Men start being attracted by pretty girls as soon as they notice anything—which is at about three months. And they keep it up until they die. They're made that way, and they can't help it any more than they can help breathing.

And what do you care? We're as bad about the men. Don't tell me we're not when you consider the fuss we make over screen and stage idols. Admire the girl he does, too, and don't be a jealous cat. I'm glad you didn't say anything to him about the matter.

MISS WORRIED SIXTEEN: I think it would be all right to accept Jack's invitation, and then I'd write the girl friend about it. Tell her as much as you can what you talked about and what he said about her, if anything complimentary, and tell her how you feel about the whole matter.

As they are not engaged, Jack would have a right to feel peeved if you refused his invitation and told him why, which would be only right under the circumstances. He would not want to have it thought that she had a mortgage on him and could keep other people away. That would only hurt her case with him.

If you still feel uncertain, better consult your own feelings if you were the one away and your boy friend asked a girl for a date in the same casual way. Would you care?

"DEAR MISS LEE: Since I am young and understand my generation, may I give them a suggestion worthy of thought and trial?

"This suggestion is to spend a great deal of time with mother and dad.

"I have moved a great deal, therefore I have met a great number of people. I am considered beautiful, have friends, my own car; in fact, I have everything a girl could ask for. So you see I'm not saying this just because it is my fate.

"I have a wonderful mother and father. Mother always understood me. Every time dad has said something about a friend—not boys only, but girls as well—he is right.

"It is for this reason I spend five nights a week with them. We go places and have a good time. They are real pals, that can share my troubles and help me.

"So I advise each young person to know mother and dad during the remainder of the summer. Your friend. LOUISE."

An excellent idea, Louise. No summer will be wasted, even if one cannot take a long vacation and meet new people, if you get to know your parents better and grow closer to them.

Wear Overnight Mask

By GLADYS GLAD

Back in the Moyen age, women used to go to bed at night with strips of raw beefsteak or veal arranged on their faces, in order to beautiful themselves. These raw meat applications were known as "Husband Masks," and were permitted to remain on the face throughout the entire night.

The modern woman, however, does not, as a rule, cover her face with meats or thick pastes when she retires at night. In the first place, she dislikes to have her husband witness the attempts she makes to keep herself attractive. And in the second place, she realizes that the skin must be given a chance to breathe freely. Therefore, she goes to bed with her skin clean and fresh. And she takes her mask treatments in the afternoon or early evening.

However, some women have not the time to give themselves mask treatments during the daytime. And because the skin derives such great benefits from face masks, I would suggest for those women a weekly overnight mask treatment.

An excellent overnight face mask can be made of oatmeal, egg white and honey. Mix an ounce of honey with three ounces of fine oatmeal, and fold in the beaten white of one egg. This will form a smooth, thick paste. Before applying the mask, cleanse your skin thoroughly, employing your usual cleansing process, and smooth a bit of nutrient or cold cream around your eyes and mouth. Then spread the paste over your entire face, with the exception of your eyelids.

You will need something to hold the paste properly on your face during the night. A square of soft linen or thin muslin will serve this purpose admirably. Cut holes in the cloth for your eyes, nose and mouth, and fasten it over your face after the paste has been applied. If you prefer you may spread the paste directly onto the muslin or linen, and then fasten the entire mask into position.

The following morning the mask should be removed, and a bit of nutrient or cold cream should be applied to the face to counteract any drying effects of the mask, and to keep the skin soft and smooth.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Mouth Wash

G. M.: An effective mouth wash can be made by dissolving one-fourth of a teaspoon of borax, one-fourth of a teaspoon of salt and one-fourth of a teaspoon of peroxide in a glass of warm water.

Reducing

Margaret Gray: You can indeed safely rid yourself of those 15 excess pounds by following the reducing course contained in my booklet on "The New Figure." I regret to say that the routine is too long to print here.

Standard Weight

Mary K.: Your weight is about correct for your height and age. Facial exercises such as the movements involved in whistling and blowing bubbles will help to round out the facial contours.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

All Stars Overwhelm St. Brigid Team 24-6

PINCH HITTING for Phil Frame by R. A. H.

While the food supply at the combined softball jamboree and lawn fete at Paintersville ran out early Wednesday, here was a considerable amount on hand orginally considering that all of it was donated for the purpose.

The immense crowd was beyond expectations of those in charge of arrangements with the result while there was enough food for 1,000 sandwiches, these were quickly exhausted by the famished fans, who then had to go hungry until they got back to Xenia.

Jim McCurran who played shortfield for the Downtown Country Club with the picture of a chicken sandwich floating before his eyes like a mirage was one of those sending up a loud wail when he learned the food was all gone.

Although it was only the second non-league game the Downtown Country Club ever participated in, Sam Huston, Downtowner first baseman, is in favor of further engagaments with non-league opponents. Sam seemed to have a lot of fun as one of "Atlas" Smith's guests for the evening. He must have gotten one of those sandwiches at least.

The retirement from baseball of one of its finest and most successful characters Cornelius McGillicuddy, otherwise Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, looms as a possibility in case his team wins the world's championship this fall.

It now appears certain that the American League champs will repeat in their circuit and that the St. Louis Cardinals will again capture the National gonfalon and again be their opponents in the series. No manager has ever won three straight world championships and it appears likely that this would be a graceful spot for Mack to retire if he accomplishes the feat in October, Mack is up in years and is reported ready to step out if it can be done gracefully.

* * * *

The Athletics' boss is undoubtedly one of the greatest baseball organizers in the business, since he has practically always built his teams from raw material.

After his famous club of 1914 was beaten four straight games by the Boston Beans in 1914 in the series, he broke up the club and began to rebuild anew. There were many lean years until he put the team together that captured the flag in 1929. As an example of his rare artistry with ball players take the case of Waite Hoyt, whose pitching days were supposed to be over. Mack has made a winning pitcher of him and has him taking his turn regularly in the box. Pob "Lefty" Groves has lost but two games this season and seems destined to pitch more than thirty winners before the schedule folds up.

Baseball, however, is one field of endeavor in which a fine organization does not always mean financial success. Mack's team is so good this year that the rest of the circuit can't furnish him with enough opposition to make it interesting for the fans. As a result they are turning their attention to the lowly Phillies, who Burt Shotton is having a hard time keeping out of last place in the National League.

Babb's column is authority for the information that Thurman Wical, former semi-pro pitcher in these parts is doing well with the Charlotte, N. C. Hornets in the Piedmont League this season. Wical is given credit for the fact that the Hornets are leading the loop with an eight-game margin. He has won fourteen games so far, the lats ten in a row.

JAMESTOWN TO PLAY BELMONT ON SUNDAY

The Jamestown Merchants will play the Belmont Merchants Sunday at Jamestown and will open a three-game series with the Xenia Merchants the following Sunday, August 9, the first game to be played in Xenia.

Jamestown lost its second straight game last Sunday to the South Vienna Merchants by the score of 5 to 1, although outhitting the winners by a good margin. Evans held South Vienna to five hits and fanned six, but was not given the best of support. Tracy, of South Vienna, permitted eight hits and fanned five of the enemy.

VICIOUS ATTACK BY LEAGUE LEADERS IS RESULT PRODUCER

Winners Smack Out 28 Hits; Losers Weak In Field

Going to bat sixty-three times during an ordinary nine-inning game, the All Stars, leaders of the American League race, pounded out twenty-eight hits, including three home runs, three triples and five doubles, took advantage of ten errors and walked three times to score 24 runs against the St. Brigid school team at Cox Field Thursday evening. The losers accumulated six runs.

Hornick was certainly no puzzle to the heavy artillery of the loop leaders, who increased their individual batting average while slaughtering the pellet all over that section of the county. The winners began their assault viciously in the first stanza, producing five runs on five hits, gathered four more in the fourth, six in the fifth, four in the sixth and three in the seventh.

The winners made a field day of the occasion, hammering the ball unmercifully, chasing the St. Brigid fielders to all corners of the township and running bases until they were exhausted. Moll led this attack with five hits, including a homer, triple and three singles while Putnam got three safeties, including two home runs and a single. Blackburn collected a triple and two doubles in three trips and Weaver got four singles in seven times at bat.

Anderson pitched for the winners and permitted but six hits. Hornick, who hurled for the loosers, was stronger at bat than he was in the box, getting a double and two ingles in four swings. Grahams will meet the Wood Barbers in a National League game at the yard Friday evening.

ROBINS REDEEM SELVES AFTER TWO MONTHS' DELAY

On their way at last after two months' dalliance in the second division, the Brooklyn Robins have once more become the pennant threat they were expected to be before the season began. Leaders in the Flatbush Flock's thrilling pennant drive include Babe Herman, top left; Dazzy Vance, top right; Del Bissonette, lower left, and Al Lopez, lower right. Center is Manager Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn's vetern boss, who has won two pennants for Flatbush.

IDLE HOUR TEAM DROPS CLOSE GAME TO SPRINGFIELD TEAM

Stopping the highly-touted Idle Hour Club's batting attack to a standstill, the St. Paul Lutheran Church team of Springfield managed to make its few hits count to defeat the Xenia team 3 to 0 at Mulberry Park Thursday vening.

The usually vicious batting assault of the colored boys was held to a single by Shoecraft by the masterly pitching of Meder, the visiting hurler. In the meantime Bradshaw, of the Idle Hour Club, was also having a good day, permitting the visitors but four safeties.

One of these was a home run by Kinsler in the first inning and Swan, who had been given a life on an error, was scored ahead of him. The visitors wasted a hit in the second when a snappy double play stopped the rally and they scored their final run in the last frame of the seven-inning game.

Only twenty-two batters faced Meder during the abbreviated contest and he probably established a local strike-out record by whiffing thirteen of the Xenia boys during the short game, including all three of the first batters to face him in the first inning. He wound up strong by fanning two in the last stanza.

The Idle Hour Club will play the Moore and Swindler team at Wilmington Friday night and will go to Washington C. H. Sunday to meet the Dahl-Campbell Co. team.

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

WHILE THE second place clubs in both major leagues are rapidly coming to the conclusion that this isn't a baseball race but a ride on the merry-go-round and that they'll never catch up with the horse ahead, it might be well to peer at the doings in other baseball wheels which, if less important are far more interesting to the inhabitants of their constituent cities.

A quick survey of minor league affairs shows that with few exceptions the smaller circuits are enjoying hotly contested arguments for which they must be the envy of their haughtier big league brethren.

Close, red-hot races in the American and National leagues would have meant huge additional sums in the coffers of several clubs in each of the two big wheels. However, if runaway races hurt big leagues they are fatal to the smaller groups. Tight pennant fights this year, then, have proven blessings to many a minor league.

TWO OF the three top-notch minors, the class AA fellows, are vigorous slam bang battles of potency to delight the heart of any scrap-loving fan.

At this writing Oakland, Seattle and San Francisco were all square in the struggle for first place in the second half race of the Pacific Coast league. Los Angeles trod the heels of the three first-place teams, only a game to the rear.

Two and a half tilts was the margin which kept Montreal looking down from the first rung on Newark in the International league. And Rochester was but three games away.

St. Paul seems to have temporarily mastered the American association situation, having fashioned a six-game lead over Minneapolis and Louisville. But the rest of the clubs are closer together than Monday and Tuesday.

TURNING to class A leagues we find more close scraps.

The Texas and Western circuits show but one and one-half games between the No. 1 and No. 2 outfits in each circuit. St Joseph was a step ahead of Des Moines in the Western and Houston had the same edge on Beaumont in the Texas. Hartford trailed Bridgeport in the Eastern league by two scant games.

In other leagues Quincy led Peoria by two games in the Three-i, Wilkes-Barre topped York by one and one-half contests in the New York-Pennsylvania, Grand Island held a one and one-half game lead on Lincoln in the Nebraska State, Youngstown and Fairmount were tied in the Mid-Atlantic, Joplin was two up on Bartlesville in the Western association, and El Paso was one and one-half ahead of Phoenix in the Arizona-Texas loop.

Other races weren't so close.

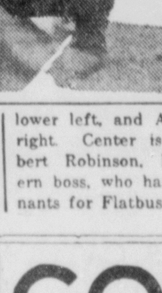

GOLF for GIRLS

by GLENNA COLLETT

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth of a series of instructive golf articles written by Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, national champion and America's best known woman golfer, for Central Press Association and the Gazette.

Number 8

MORE QUESTIONS nave been asked me concerning my pivot than any other part of my stroke.

Glenna Collett

So here's how—and why.

I raise my left heel decidedly on the backswing. I was taught not to pivot from the waist—the ordinary arch that the club-head follows on the backswing being sufficient to carry the body along with it in a natural turn. That is, of course, if I took my left heel off the ground.

It isn't a sway. Most golfers have been misled by this pivot being termed a "sway." It really is just a mere shifting of weight.

I bring my weight back as far on the right foot as possible in order to acquire a wider arch with which to hit the ball. My left heel then has to snap back onto the ground.

The left heel has to come down quickly—don't forget—to put the player in a firm position so as to make full use of all her hitting power.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 31—Pouncing upon a scattering of speculative favorites which were believed to be out of line on a price-earning ratio the bear faction imparted renewed unsettlement into the main body of stocks today, with the general level of prices forced to new low ground on the current reactionary phase.

The decline was well maneuvered, for selling was heaviest in those issues which had been in the for front of the final splunge of the memorable 1929 bull campaign.

TELLING the WORLD'S NEWS with PICTURES

Off to Blaze Trail to Orient

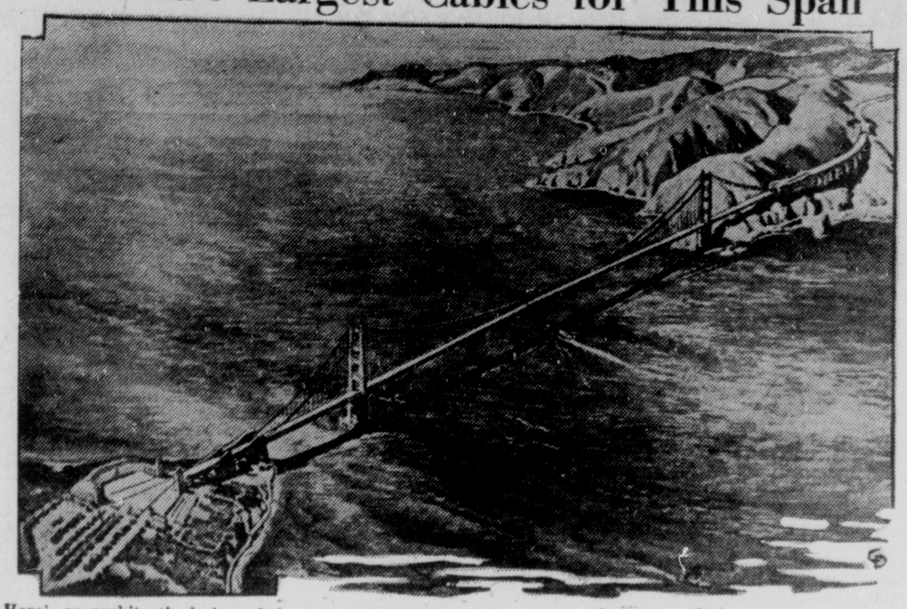

With the same nonchalance which characterized his take-off for Paris four years ago, Colonel Charles E. Lindbergh, accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, took off from New York for Washington on the first leg of their projected trail-blazing flight to the Orient. The famous couple of the air is shown in insert as they amicably smile for the photographer just before skimming off in their powerful pontoon-equipped Lockheed Sirius low-wing monoplane. The aerial shot of the Lindberghs headed for Washington, with the imposing New York skyline in the background, is one of the best ever taken.

World's Largest Cables for This Span

Here's an architect's design of the proposed Golden Gate Bridge, the largest in the world, to be built over San Francisco Bay Narrows. More than 174,000 miles of wire, enough to circle the world seven times at the Equator, will be used in the cables and suspender ropes that will swing the bridge into place. There will be two main cables, each a mile and a half long and 36¼ inches in diameter. Each will weigh 10,937 tons, exceeding by several tons the largest cable previously woven.

England's Fairest Invade U. S. Courts

Now that leading United States ladies have bowed at the Court of St. James, we find these English women reciprocating, but in a different manner. They are the members of the Wightman Cup team who will represent their country in the international matches to be held Aug. 7-8. This picture, taken at Forest Hills, L. I., just before their first practice on American soil, shows, left to right: Eileen Whittingstall, Betty Nuthall, Mrs. W. P. Shepherd-Barron, Phyllis Mudford and Dorothy Round.

Supreme Regent Miss Mary C. Duffy, Newark, N. J., was unanimously re-elected head of the 200,000 Catholic Daughters of America at the recent convention of the order held in Atlantic City, N. J. Mrs. Anna C. Baxter, Dubuque, Iowa, is a member of the national board and chairman of the extension of the organization committee. The Most Rev. Bishop William J. Hafey, of Raleigh, N. C., is national chaplain. The organization has 2,000 courts throughout America, Cuba, Porto Rico and Panama.

Guaranteed to Furnish Thrills

In preparation for the busy racing season, the mosquitoes of the sea, better known as "skimmers," turn out for practice races on Alamitos Bay, off Long Beach, Calif. The skimmers are the smallest type of recognized racing yacht and their contests verge on the spectacular as sailed by young skippers, who are just as frequently girls as boys. This snappy action proves that all's not serenely smooth sailing when out in a skimmer. But it looks mightily exciting just the same.

The Twain Meet "Liberty" to Brave Sea Again

Contradicting Kipling, the East and the West have met, but there's trouble ahead. Attractive Katsuko Suzuki (above), Japanese co-ed at the University of California, is claimed by two men, one Japanese and one American. The Japanese claims to be her guardian and says he secured a divorce to wed Katsuko, according to ancient Japanese custom. The American, Joseph W. Angell, son of a minister of Gold Beach, Oregon, claims the love of the Japanese girl and also wishes to marry her. Katsuko insists she will make up her own mind.

"Liberty," the monoplane which already has negotiated the treacherous Atlantic, is going to get an opportunity to see if it can repeat its oceanic feat. Mrs. Geraldine Grey Loffredo (left), Buffalo's (N. Y.) leading woman flier and parachute jumper, has purchased the "Liberty" in which Otto Hillig (right), Liberty, N. Y., photographer, flew to Copenhagen with Hoiriis. Mrs. Loffredo proposes to fly from New York to Rome.

West Point Rookies At Gunnery Class

Here's a fine bunch of raw material going through the process that will make them army commanders. They are members of the new class at the United States Academy at West Point, N. Y., learning to operate machine guns. The boys have had but two weeks of mass command and calisthenic drill instruction but have proven apt pupils in that short time. Notice the earnest expression on the face of the cadet on the extreme left of picture. Evidently he takes his gun seriously.

A Meeting of Moment

Ostensibly Ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith is wishing Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York the best of luck on his fishing trip in Peconic Bay as the two chieftains of the Democratic party meet at Westhampton, L. I. Political dopesters have been debating for some time what will happen when the Democratic National Convention rolls around to nominate a candidate for the Presidency. Governor Roosevelt, in the past, has been a staunch supporter of Al Smith. The question is will Smith back Roosevelt now that he has aspirations for high office? It's a meeting of moment.

Where Aged Inmates Died in Fire

A view of one of the burned dormitories in the Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor, Pittsburgh, following the fire which swept the building. Twenty-six aged men and women inmates lost their lives and many others are in a serious condition in various Pittsburgh hospitals. Heroic nuns and firemen saved the lives of a hundred more by leading them to safety through smoke-filled hallways.

Greta to Wed

The entrancing allure which Greta Garbo (above), Swedish film star, has exercised over thousands of movie admirers, has won her a husband, a Swedish merchant named Andersson, according to an article published in the Svenske Dagbladet, Copenhagen, Denmark. The widely known screen star is said to be on her way to Europe to hear the wedding bells ring out.

Havana and Back in 17 Hours

Captain Frank Hawks, premier speed pilot of the world, is shown being greeted by prominent New York officials and his wife after his record-breaking flight to Havana and return in total elapsed time of a little more than 17 hours. Such time gave Hawks his breakfast in New York, lunch in Havana and dinner in New York. From New York to Havana, Hawks set a new mark of eight hours, eight minutes in his famous Texaco 13 monoplane, beating the recently set record of James Hall by 27 minutes. Returning he beat his own old record in flying the 1,400 miles in seven hours and 31 minutes. Left to right are: George Mann, of the New York Mayor's Reception Committee; Mrs. Hawks, Capt. Hawks and William Deegan, city official.

May we make a suggestion?

Many people miss events at the Fair that they really want to see and attend.

Why not get a program and mark down particular items of interest, the time they are to be held and where. Then you won't be sorry you missed something.

There is an awful lot to see at your BIG FAIR and you should try to see it all.

FAMILY QUARREL SETTLED BY POLICE

Half a dozen telephone calls in less than as many minutes, took police in a hurry to the center of a neighborhood fight on Walnut St., Thursday evening.

They arrested Glenn Johnson, his wife, Hazel, who is suing him for divorce; Edward Thoroman and his son Everett, neighbors.

Police learned that the fracas started after the Johnsons met at their former home, 59 Walnut St., to arrange affairs incident to their separation. All were released pending an appearance before Judge E. D. Smith Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Bert Driscoll, 50 Stelton Road was placed under $500 bond when he pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegal possession of liquor before Judge Smith Friday.

Police confiscated six gallons of liquor in a raid at Driscoll's home Thursday afternoon. Both Driscoll and his wife disclaimed ownership of the liquor and said it was the property of Calvin Brown, Bellbrook Ave. Brown, arrested, denied the charge. He was also held under bond for a joint hearing August 4.

UNION SERVICES DURING AUGUST

Union Sunday evening church services will be continued during the month of August. The schedule is being announced by the Rev. W. N. Shank, president of the Xenia Ministerial Association.

The schedule is: August 2, Second U. P. Church with the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold preaching; Aug. 9, First Lutheran Church with the Rev. S. H. Brill, preaching; August 16, First U. P. Church with the Rev. J. R. Lunsford preaching; August 23, Friends church with the Rev. J. P. Lytle preaching, and August 30 at the United Brethren Church with the Rev. E. A. Rager preaching.

Hoover's New Aide

Some Stars From A. A. U. Constellation

The women, bless 'em, had their day at Pershing Field, New Jersey, when the A. A. U. held its Women's Track and Field Championships Meet. Many spiked-shoe beauties from the Middle West and South showed that they are not content to let their men uphold the traditional athletic prowess of the great outdoors. Above are four of the dashing participants of the meet who gave a good account of themselves. Mary Carter came all the way from Dallas, Texas, to do her stuff, and, boy, how she did it! Anne O'Brien, of Los Angeles, is a former Olympic star sprinter; look at the action in the picture. Evelyne Hall, of Chicago, shows how she clears obstacles; hurdles are her meat, and Nellie Todd, also of Chicago, is a broad jumper that takes a lot to beat her. Look out, men, for your records!

COUNTY 4-H CLUB NEWS

The "Careful Canners" 4-H Club held its last meeting of the year at the home of the leader, Mrs. Bootes, Thursday afternoon. Demonstrations were given and plans were made for a food market at Gegner's meat market, Saturday. Proceeds from the market will be used by the girls to pay their camp expenses. All members of the club are planning to attend the 4-H Camp.

EAST END NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Collins, E. Second St., had as their guests for dinner Thursday evening Mrs. Pearl Thomas, Washington C. H., and Mrs. Virgil Allen, this city.

Mrs. Ora Hawkins, 20 Evans Ave., and her brother Charles Smith, Jacksonville, Fla., who is visiting her, will go to Columbus Monday to visit relatives there and also in the southern part of the state.

Mr. Arthur J. Baxter and son, Lestley, of Berea, Ky., visited his cousin, Mrs. J. J. Turner and family of Wilberforce this week. He also visited relatives in Springfield and Columbus, O. Mr. Baxter is one of Berea's enterprising young business men.

GIVEN JUDGMENT

Mrs. Cleo Wogaman was awarded a verdict for $330.50 against C. E. Bradstreet by a municipal court jury Thursday afternoon, in her suit to recover for household goods alleged to have been stolen or damaged while in charge of the defendant for storage. Five of the six jurors signed the verdict.

Love Leads Heroine To Broadway In New Serial

By Central Press

Longing for freedom from the petty, narrow-minded gossip of the back fence brigade in her home town leads Natalie Dudley, with her sister Nita, to follow the glit-

ETHELDA BEDFORD

tering mirage of adventure along the highway that leads to Broadway. On that gay white way Natalie falls in love—with a man who unconsciously erects a hopeless barrier to the culmination of their romance.

What happens to Natalie's love is told in Ethelda Bedford's "Broadway Bride," the story of a girl who took love seriously, which begins in The Gazette Tuesday, August 4. Miss Bedford, also the author of "Dear Diary," a continued feature, is a serial story writer of vast experience. Her stories about girls have met with instant success in the magazine and newspaper world.

Her Career

She began her writing career as a society editor in Memphis, Tenn., and after a few weeks took over the lovelorn department on the paper and in addition wrote the adventures of a girl, in diary form, for the woman's page of the same paper. The diary cut capers in the circulation department and appeared in the Memphis paper for three years after its beginning.

Then Miss Bedford sought other fields. She traveled around the country, working on various papers and seeing how far other newspapers and features were gotten out. Then she turned to magazine work, writing many stories and selling them too.

Her latest effort, "Broadway Bride," embodies all the elements of a successful newspaper serial story, and then some. In it Natalie Dudley, who is accused by her sister of being afraid to take the things from life she wants most, tries to adapt her philosophy, to the atmosphere of Broadway. She finds love, loses it and finds it again, without surrendering one of the ideals in which she believes.

Strong Characters

There are other splendid characters, too. Nita, her sister, who craves the adulation and applause of a Broadway audience; Alyn Brady, a disillusioned young man seeking to forget his ideals in the care-free life of the world's gayest street, and Charles Young, a serious-minded theatrical producer, who backs Nita in her night club ventures. The characters move in an exciting background of events leading up to a thrilling and unlooked for conclusion. Don't forget, the first chapter of "Broadway Bride" appears in The Gazette, August 4.

Fleur De Lis Print

Oil King As Great Granddad

One of the best pictures ever taken of John D. Rockefeller is this exclusive one portraying him as a great granddad. This charming snapshot, taken on the great Lakewood, N. J., estate of the oil king, shows him affectionately holding the children of Mr. and Mrs. George de Cuevas on his lap. The youngsters, covering a span of nearly 90 years between themselves and their great grandfather, are: John (left), 9 months, and Elizabeth, 2½ years. Mrs. de Cuevas is the daughter of the late Mrs. Charles A. Strong, who, before her marriage, was Bessie Rockefeller.

YOU NEVER KNEW BRAN COULD BE SO DELICIOUS

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is a delightful surprise. It is as good to eat as it is good for you.

This appetizing ready-to-eat cereal protects and relieves you from constipation—and from the headaches, the dizziness, the lack of "pep" that go with it.

Start the whole family on this health-habit tomorrow. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, will prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, eat ALL-BRAN with each meal.

Delicious with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which brings color to cheeks and lips. At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THE GAZETTE

Across the chasm of misunderstanding these two, Natalie Dudley and Alyn Brady, faced each other conscious of a great love which they thrust aside.

Can love bridge the chasm? Do they overcome an almost hopeless chain of reverses running through this enthralling and exciting love story?

LEGALITY OF BOARD MEMBER DISCUSSED BY STATE EXAMINER

Whether Samuel D. Andrews is a de facto member of the board of education of Xenia Twp. can only be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction, B. B. Vance, state examiner, remarks in a report of a special examination of Xenia Twp. school district, made to Auditor of Stote Joseph T. Tracy.

"If Mr. Andrews is considered a member de facto, then the foregoing acts would be legal," the examiner says, referring to acts performed by Mr. Andrews as a member of that body.

Prosecuting Attorney Marcus McCallister, commenting upon this statement of the examiner, said that a "court of competent jurisdiction" in such a case would be the Court of Appeals, and the method of bringing the matter to the attention of the court would be by "ouster" or quo warranto proceedings. He expressed the opinion that Mr. Andrews is a "de jure", member, or member under the law, and not a de facto member of the group.

Litigation over the alleged illegal appointment of Mr. Andrews as a board member last January to fill a vacancy, and an opinion of the attorney general that he had not been elected by a majority vote, resulted in his resignation, and later re-election by a vote of two members, at a time when the board had only three members.

The examiner held legal, the payment by the board of $390 to Mrs. Loberta Kinzer, widow of Joseph Kinzer a regularly employed teacher in the township for the school year 1927-28. The payment was for services as teacher rendered for three months and one week at $375.75, and $14.25 for janitor services at the school.

A filing was made for illegal payment of $60 to D. H. Barnes as assistant clerk of the school board, issued February 13, 1930.

The examiner remarks: "Upon questioning Mr. Bryson the clerk, he said he did not need an assistant, and had never asked for one. Why the board handed Mr. Barnes this $60 we are not able to understand. We cannot see any service he performed after January 6, 1930. To that date, he had previously been paid."

The report covers the period from December 13, 1929, to May 25, 1931. It was made at the request of a number of tax payers.

CHAPTER 45

LADY MOORING'S mind had flown back to London, to the Savoy Hotel, to a young girl's surprised face when she had suddenly appeared in Roy Burney's apartments; a mater she had been too distressed to give any thought to at the time. But she remembered now.

Burney had given her a good description of Ann Carmichael's character. She had rejoiced to think that for his wife he had chosen such a high type of modern girl. Always since meeting him, within her had lurked the dread that he might be caugnt by some pretty girl who was only after his money.

Now she guessed that Ann must have seen them together, in some compromising situation.

The countess and Lord Hilary Fenton had reached Honolulu the previous day. The following, they had been going on to Hawaii. But—

Lady Mooring pressed back her own grief, remembering only the boy's.

"So Ann's throwing you over had something to do with me," she said quietly.

Again he made no answer. He was still struggling desperately to find satisfactory lies.

"But, Roy, surely you told her the truth!"

Again he could find nothing to say.

"Oh, my darling!" she gasped, her voice full of love and pain. "Then I shall tell her."

"Honey, you mustn't," he cried in a frantic manner.

"Darling, I shall," she said, turning to go.

He clutched at her wrist and stopped her. She tried to free her self, but he held her, watching her with desperate eyes.

A voice broke in on the struggles.

"Here, I say, what are you two fighting about?"

Standing at the entrance of the alcove was Lord Hilary Fenton, slim and tall, young and handsome, who one day would be the Earl of Mooring, looking every inch of him fitted for the position, very different from the meager, undersized youth who held Countess Mooring with thin, anxious fingers.

"And where's the wonderful Ann?" Hilary asked. "I thought she was to be trotted out for my inspection."

"She's thrown Roy over," Lady Mooring panted. "And I won't let him sacrifice himself any more. He never told her the truth. She thinks —Oh, Hilary, you know what anyone might think if . . . if they didn't know how things really were."

"I do, my beautiful mother," he said calmly.

He turned towards Burney.

"Look here Roy, old horse, what's chiefly the matter with you is that you're altogether too financially minded, too one hundred per cent American, for now you're trying to make a corner in this sacrificing business."

Burney's frantic gaze went to the handsome youngster who stood watching him with affectionate admiration.

"But, Hilary, think—" he began.

"My dear chap, I never do. It might wear out my brains. Besides if I don't mind Ann's being told, why should you?"

"The less that know—" Burney began.

"Passed unanimously. But not at your expense. It's quite time I did my bit. So let the matter go."

As Burney hesitated Hilary came closer. Carefully, one by one he peeled off the thin fingers holding his mother's wrist and gripped them in his own.

"Now cut along mater and leave the obstreperous old horse to me. I'll take him out into the garden and talk to him some. Tell Ann she'll find her hero by the sea wall and me in charge of the case."

Lady Mooring went quickly from the lounge

Once she was out of sight, Hilary picked up Ann's ring and looked at it. Then he examined the contents of the tapestry bag. He drew out the wonderful pearl necklace and scanned it with interest.

"That Ann of yours seems to be an all or nothing sort of young person," he remarked breaking the silence that had descended on them with Countess Mooring's departure. "Fancy giving this back to a fellow after you'd gotten it out of him!"

Indignation broke through the shyness that had fallen on Burney now that he was alone with Hilary.

"She didn't get it out of me. Ann's not that sort. She——"

Then he noticed the amused, teasing gleam on the handsome face watching him and stopped short.

Hilary laughed and laid an affectionate hand on Burney's thin shoulder.

"I was only ragging. You'll have to get used to that if I'm to see as much of you as I should like to."

He tucked his arm through Roy's, and picking up the tapestry bag and the ring, led him out into the garden.

In her bedroom Ann was packing. With feverish haste she was turning out trunks and wardrobe. All the pretty clothes Roy had given her were being dumped into a separate box to be left behind with his name and room number on it. On the bed she flung her own few possessions—her one desire to get out of the hotel as soon as possible and right away from him.

As she stood by the bed there was a knock at the door. Ann scowled, but she did not call "come in". She imagined the visitor was Roy Burney coming to plead further with her. And never again under any condition, would she say another word to him.

The knock came again a trifle louder and more insistent. After a moment's hesitation the door opened.

On the threshold stood Lady Mooring.

Then Ann, usually so well controlled, felt suddenly savage and primitive. She was too angry to wonder why the countess was there. For the second time she was face to face with her supposed rival, the woman whose image had haunted her for the past five months, who had stolen all happiness from her and had made her life a wilderness.

It would have given her endless pleasure to have fallen on Countess Mooring; to have scratched her face and pulled her hair. To keep herself from behaving in this unladylike manner she thumped unmercifully at te clotes se was packing, and ignored her visitor entirely.

Lady Mooring came in and closed the door.

"Ann" she said, calmly. "I want a few words with you."

In an infuriated manner the girl glanced at her.

What did the creature mean by coming to her room? Calling her "Ann" in this barefaced manner, and in a voice, too, that suggested compromise? If that painted golddigger thought they were going to share Roy Burney between them, she was very much mistaken.

"I don't know what you're doing here" the girl snapped. "And I certainly don't want to hear anything you have to say."

With a patinet, understanding air Lady Mooring eyed the young fury.

"Roy tells me you've thrown him over," she said, in a quiet voice.

"And if I have, it's no business of yours."

"It's every business of mine. You see, Ann, I'm—his mother."

As if suddenly paralyzed, the girl stopped slapping and thumping the garments on the bed. Openmouthed she stared at Lady Mooring.

Ann had the feeling of having been unexpectedly dropped into a deep, dark well of ice-cold water that left her gasping and breathless chilled to the bone, in utter blackness, unable to get back to the world she knew.

All anger vanished.

"You! His mother!"

"A very poor one, I'm afraid, but —it wasn't really my fault."

Ann still could not credit her ears. She took a step or two towards the countess, looking at her in an uncredulous manner.

"What are you talking about?" she gasped.

"It may be a little difficult for you to believe but I'm saying Roy is my son."

"But . . . but he told me he was from the Bowery!"

Cincinnati Welcome To Heroes To Be Broadcast

By MILDRED MASON

RADIO listeners will hear how Cincinnati welcomes the nation's heroes when WLW announcers give an account of that city's reception to Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, intrepid round-the-world fliers Sunday. When the "Winnie Mae" settles down on the runways of the Watson Airport at 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon WLW announcers will be on hand to provide an accurate word picture of the event. The fliers will be welcomed at the field by members of the Greater Cincinnati reception committee and by high city officials. Following brief talks over WLW by the two fliers they will be taken on an inspection of the city.

During the evening a formal public reception will be extended the fliers with a dinner in their honor at the Hotel Gibson. More than 2,000 citizens are expected to attend this function which will also be broadcast over WLW at 7:30 o'clock. The Post-Gatty visit to Cincinnati is being sponsored by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

Broadcast 24 Hours

Another twenty-four hour broadcast over stations WLW and W8XAL, Cincinnati, started Friday noon and will be brought to a close Saturday at 12 o'clock noon. Interesting entertainment has been planned for the entire night so why not go to bed Friday night and leave your radio turned on?

Present All-Downey Program

An all-Downey program will be broadcast during the Camel Quarter hour Saturday evening over the Columbia network through station WKRC Cincinnati, at 6:45 o'clock. Both the vocal and orchestral selections will be songs composed by the star of the program, Morton Downey. Downey wil sing "Carolina Sunshine," "You Made the World Lonesome for Me" and "My Melody of Love to You." The orchestra will play "Now You're in My Arms" and Downey's hit song, "Wabash Moon."

Crooner Is Guest

Mildred Hunt, crooning contralto, will be guest artist on the Club Valspar program over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati Saturday evening from 8:30 to 9 o'clock. Two of the featured numbers on her program will be "I'm Through With Love" and "Must Have Love."

Broadcast from Paris

In an attempted rebroadcast from Paris on Sunday, direct descendants of the Lafayette, Rochambeau and DeGrasse families will be heard over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, when they speak in the hall of Colonial Exposition replica of Mount Vernon at a dinner in their honor. The program is scheduled from 4 to 5 p. m. Many unusual aspects are expected in the transoceanic broadcast which will be introduced by a Paris announcer in the Mount Vernon banquet hall, transmitted across the Atlantic to the RCA shortwave receiving station at Riverhead, Long Island, sent by land lines to NBC and rebroadcast throughout the United States.

BRINGING UP FATHER By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

A. A. Milne's "The Dover Road," which apparently winds on forever, will be presented over the radio Friday evening and will be made into a picture soon by Paramount with Eleanor Boardman playing opposite Clive Brook. The play was presented here last season by the Xenia Little Theater Guild.

This will be Miss Boardman's second role at her new studio home Recently she appeared with Paul Lukas in "Women Love Once" and the mediocre quality of the story did not overcast her clever performance, so she is expected to regain her former popularity.

People who have seen Cecil B. DeMille's "The Squaw Man," say it will help her along. Oddly enough, play. J. Grubb Alexander is using only the basic idea of the drama for his screen treatment. Kay leaves Paramount in October.

Robert McKenzie whom you will remember as the prosecuting attorney in the trial scene in "Cimarron", has on old way of beating dull times in the studios. Mr. McKenzie and his family are running a tent show on the outskirts of Culver City. One daughter, Ella, plays feminine leads: another Fay, twelve takes children's roles and Mrs. McKenzie does character parts. When the head of the family gets work in the films he has a understedy take his play in the show and playing such old-timers as "Laff That Off" and "The Man From Oklahoma", the McKenzie family is paying the grocery bills and putting money in the bank.

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese film star who is attempting a comeback in the talkies, was a quarterback on Alonzo Stagg's University of Chicago football team back in 1911 and 1912.

The Oriental star entered the university in 1910 from a military school in Japan, and made the team in his sophomore year. "In those days", he says, "there were no intercollegiate associations and games were scheduled two weeks in advance

"My football might have been all right had I not been trained in Japan in the art of jiujitsu. Sometimes I forgot myself in games and used trick holds in tackling. It always brought a storm of protests from the opponents and several times I was sent off the field by the referee."

In 1927 Hayakawa appeared on the stage in Chicago in "The Love City" and at that time the University Athletic Association gave a dinner in his honor. Afterwards he gave an exhibition of jiujitsu

Warners will give Kay Francis a chance to change her type just as they did William Powell when he came over from Paramount. The suave Kay will drop a great deal of sophistication in her first role on the new lot. This will be the American heroine of a German and traffic signal systems, Xenia will celebrate soon, the removal of twenty-one poles from Detroit St. in the completion by six utilities of the task of removing a large portion of aerial construction from the business section.

City Manager M. C. Smith has been informed that the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., will send a crew of men to Xenia from Chicago Monday to begin the work of taking down the poles, after the Pennsylvania, The Western Union Telegraph Co., and the Postal Telegraph Co., complete removal of their plants. It is expected that another week will see the poles removed.

Definite steps toward pole elimination and boulevard lights were first taken when City Manager M. C. Smith called a meeting of representatives of the utilities using the poles, for last February 24. Several conferences followed. The city manager explained that the city had plans to improve Main and Detroit Sts. with installation of a "White Way boulevard lighting system," and expected the utilities to effect removal of their poles as agreed upon in May and June 1929.

Co-operation on the part of the various utilities resulted, and an agreement was reached for completion of the program on or about August 1.

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co., Dayton Power and Light Co, and the Dayton and Xenia Railway Co., the three other utilities using the poles, have finished removal of the plants, and re-routing them by underground and aerial construction in alleys and side streets.

Representatives of the six utilities held one of the final conferences for inspection of the work Thursday afternoon. Re-routing of the systems has been from Collier to Galloway on Main St., and from Church to Third on Detroit.

The new police signal system which goes into effect with the new traffic lights is another metropolitan feature, and replaces old red lights suspended overhead by wires.

New traffic lights will go in operation at Market and Detroit, Church and Detroit, Second and Detroit, Third and Detroit, Home Ave. and Detroit and Five Points, the intersection of Cincinnati Ave., Second St., and West St. Lights have been operating at Main and Detroit and Columbus and Main Sts. and will not be changed. The lights are four-way signals placed at the corners of Market and Detroit, Church and Detroit, Second and Detroit and Third and Detroit, being affixed to the boulevard light posts. The others are overhead.

CHARLES WETZEL CALLED BY DEATH

Charles Wetzel, 79, Zimmerman, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Dayton, shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon following an illness of three weeks. He became ill at his home three weeks ago and was removed to the hospital Monday.

Mr. Wetzel was born in Zimmerman July 23, 1852 and spent his entire life there. For many years he was a prominent farmer in that vicinity but retired from active work about four years ago.

Mr. Wetzel is survived by three sons: Daniel C. Wetzel, captain of the Dayton police department; William Wetzel, Trotwood, O., and Elmer Wetzel, Bellbrook. A daughter, Mrs. Tillie Love, Dayton, also survives.

Funeral services will be held at the Progressive Dunkard Church, Zimmerman, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of the Rev. Ida Miller. Burial will be made in Mt. Zion Cemetery.
